

Bubble Slime

• Slime Family • Semiliquid Type

Habitat.....Wet areas, sewers etc.

Disposition.....Gloomy, simple

Diet.....Men's semen, sweat, saliva etc.

A type of slime that lives in dark, wet places like sewers, and other wet areas. They are intelligent enough to speak human words, but their thinking processes are extremely simple. Guided by instinct, they wander in search of their human prey.

They produce a strong odor from their liquid bodies, so one will likely know right away when they're close by. Their bodies are always carrying out chemical reactions, which cause pieces of them to be released into the air as bubbles. Perhaps due to this they need to eat a lot more than an ordinary slime to sustain their bodies, and in turn they are extremely greedy.

When they find a man, they attack him, and through something similar in form to sexual intercourse, try to take in his semen, but compared to ordinary slimes they're not as sticky and they move more slowly, so they're not very good at holding their prey down, and it tends to escape before long. Because of this, they first perform something like a kiss on their captured prey, and pour some of their own body inside his mouth. The body of a bubble slime has an aphrodisiac effect when consumed, and it is extremely addictive. Due to this, prey that's been made to swallow it will likely begin to greatly desire the slime's body. If only a little is swallowed, the effect will go away after a short time, but if a large amount is imbibed, the prey will become strongly dependent on her body, and the odor will start to become an extremely pleasant scent to him. If this happens, then it's already too late, and the man will likely no longer be able to live without the bubble slime.

Also, it's said they produce an offensive odor because they live in terrible environments. Their bodies take in toxins, convert them into a harmless substance, and release it. For that reason, if you take them out of the sewers or other such areas, and live in a clean place for a while, their foul odor will completely disappear. Once the foul odor is gone, they release a good scent that's surprisingly indistinct. The odor sensed by men who become dependent on bubble slimes is likely a powerful version of this.

Dark Slime

• Slime Family • Semiliquid Type

Habitat.....Plains of mamono realms, etc.

Disposition.....Lustful, simple

Diet.....Men's semen, sweat, saliva etc.

A type of upper rank slime with a purple body that lives throughout the mamono realms. They have the power of the succubi of the mamono realms stored up in their bodies, so they have much more magical power compared to regular slimes. Also, they have an orb called a "slime core" inside their bodies. Just as the name suggests, it is their core. Because of this, compared with ordinary slimes, they have high thinking ability and are able to cast spells.

If one spots a man, she aggressively assaults him. She uses her sticky body to get him stuck and stop him from moving. She takes in his semen and the like through something like sexual intercourse. They are much more aggressive and violent than ordinary slimes as well, so they are much more dangerous monsters. Also, be aware that they use the magic stored up in their bodies to cast charm spells.

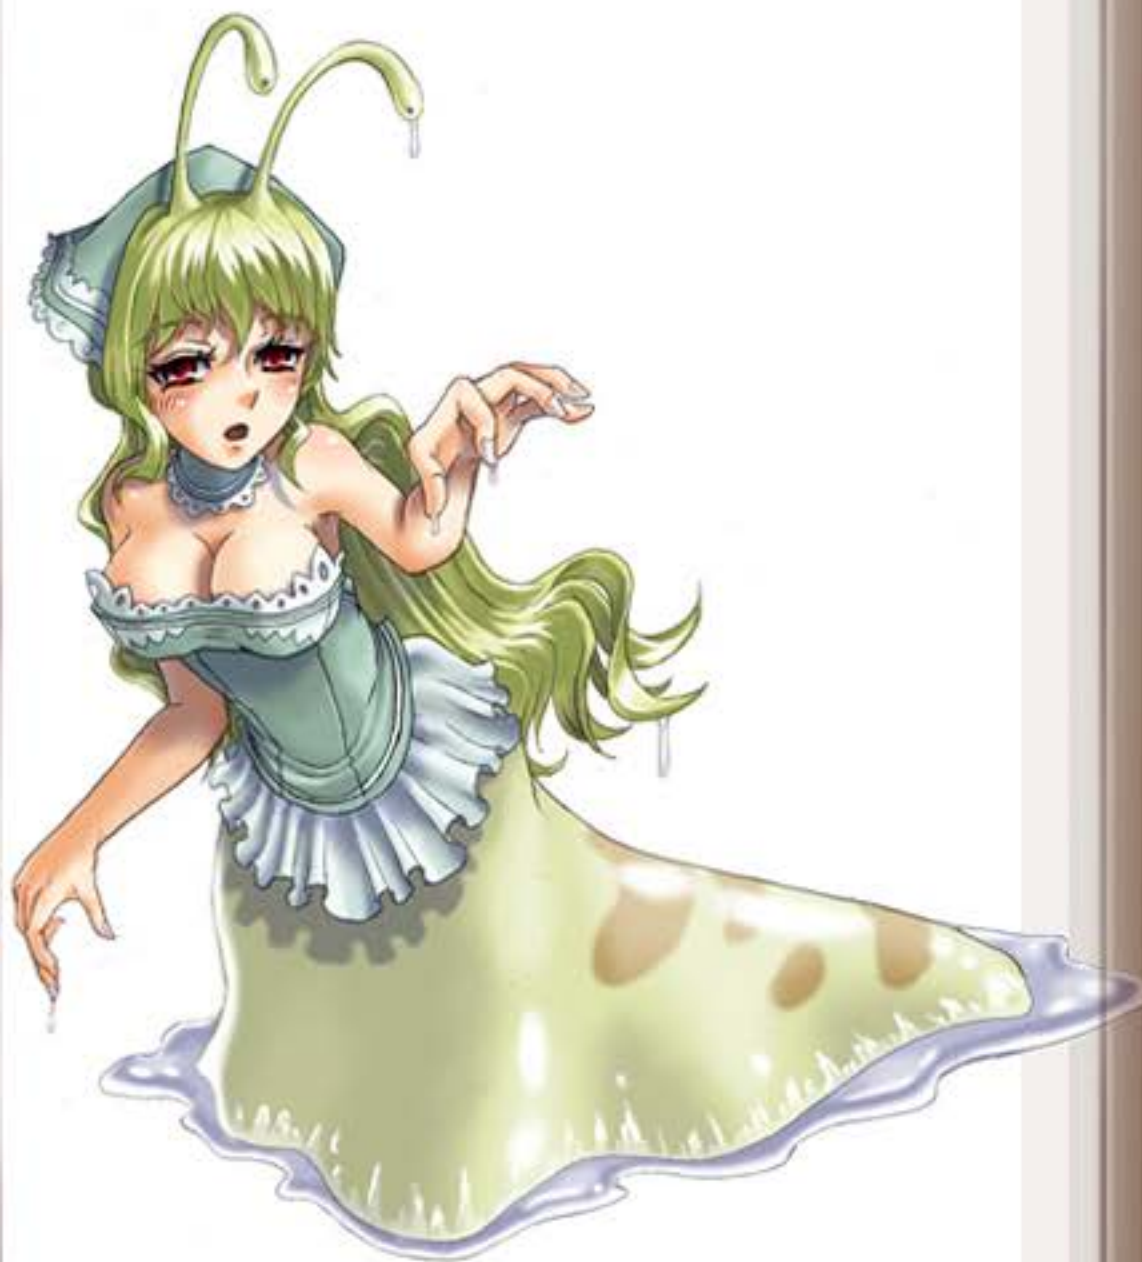

Most slimes are driven by hunger and lust to attack men, but due to their high intelligence and thought capacity as well as the succubus' mana accumulated within their bodies, there is a powerful succubus' influence on the personalities of dark slimes. They also enjoy sex for reasons other than feeding, and they attack men for the sake of tasting pleasure. Just as with the succubus and others, their speech, conduct, and gestures are alluringly seductive, and they deliberately tempt men of their own free will.

During sex as well, they do more than just instinctively milk semen. Since they can freely manipulate their bodies, they can provide many kinds of pleasure to a man. They make every effort to enjoy sex with a man to the fullest and produce as much pleasure as possible, so a man's brain will be turned to mush even more than when having sex with other slimes.

Just as in the slime, they can reproduce by division, but other than that, they also possess the ability to change human women into dark slimes just like themselves. When one spots a human woman, she will attack and envelop the woman using her entire body. Once enveloped, the woman will be pleased by the slime relentlessly, to the point that her whole body will feel like it's melting, and her mind will be completely stained with pleasure. After a woman's consciousness has been melted away by pleasure, she will be transformed into a "slime core" just like what the dark slime possesses.

The slime cores produced in this manner make new bodies based on their former human shapes, and are reborn as new dark slimes. Even after becoming a dark slime, they retain their knowledge and memories from when they were human, but their bodies and minds have been completely melted like slime due to the pleasure given by the dark slime, and their thoughts are no longer based on human values, instead being changed to those of a dark slime which desires pleasure and to mix and melt together with a man during intense sex that provides a man's sweet mana to melt their brain in pleasure even more.

Furthermore, the "slime core" is also their weak point. The core is extremely sensitive to external stimulation, and just from being touched, the pleasure is so overwhelming that they can become unable to move.

GIANT SLUG

• Shell Family • Mollusc Type

Habitat.....Sewers, swamps, forests

Disposition.....Gentle, slow

Diet.....Herbivorous, especially new shoots

A monster with a lower body like that of a slug which prefers dark and damp places. Originally, they were shelled monsters, but the shell was getting in the way, so they discarded it through the process of evolution in order to obtain even more pleasure.

When they spot a man that strikes their fancy, their mating instinct takes over, and they slimily crawl across the ground headed in a straight line for the man. However, they have extremely leisurely personalities, and their movement is slow as well, so if one runs right away, there probably won't be any danger. But no matter how docile they may be, one must never approach them. Their body is always covered in slimy, sticky mucus. If a man approaches, he'll get caught in the slimy mucus, and then, with his movement snared, they'll climb over him with their mucus covered lower body and have sticky sex.

When having sex, they caress the man's body while smearing the sticky mucus all over every inch of it. If they paint him with the mucus, then their slimy body will become able to stick to his more persistently, and they'll be able to give him a taste of pleasure that will leave him wanting more. This mucus overflows from their vagina as well, and during coitus it covers the penis and is drawn out into strings while they continually provide sticky pleasure and make lots of obscene noise. Additionally, they prefer to have sticky sex over a long period of time. Once they start having sex, it may take several hours, or even an entire day before the dull wet noises stop.

Since the rise of the current mamono lord, only females have been confirmed, but it seems they were hermaphrodites in the past. Perhaps as a vestige, it seems sometimes rarely when they spot a human woman, they'll shower her in mucus without much thought and make her all sticky.

Their sticky body is vulnerable to salt, and if their body is covered in it, their moisture will be absorbed, and their body will shrink into a child-like form. It doesn't kill them, and it doesn't cause pain or anything like that, but since they'll try to reclaim the moisture they lost by being showered in a man's semen, in contrast with their child-like appearance, they become even more aggressive about attacking men.

• Slime Family • Semiliquid Type

ハンズティ・エッグ Humpty egg

Habitat.....Wonderland

Disposition.....Lustful, simple, hasty, meek

Diet.....Human men's semen, sweat, saliva, etc.

A variety of slime unique to "Wonderland." Men who wander into Wonderland may find big eggs suddenly dropping in front of them from above, and the next thing they know these girls will fly out from inside the broken eggs and attack them.

In actuality, these are "jubjub" eggs. If a human man approaches before they hatch, they won't be able to stand waiting to be born, and they change into another kind of monster while still an egg so they can have sex with a man immediately. Perhaps because they were originally eggs, they are divided into two parts, a slimy yellow yolk with the form of a very young little girl surrounded and covered with a white slime with a high degree of transparency.

They're like newborn babies, but just like jubjubs, they're in heat from birth. Or rather, they're already in heat even before they're born. Perhaps for this reason, their mental structure is different from that of ordinary slimes. Even more than they crave a man's semen, which is basically their food, they have a tendency to seek sexual intercourse itself with a man. They target men and drop down cracking their own shells, and in the same way that baby chicks recognize whoever is in front of them when they're born as their parent, they recognize the man before their eyes when their shell cracks open as their husband, and direct their lust towards him without hesitation.

They will try to use their body parts to seize him, bind him, and copulate. They can solidify their egg white and make it like an egg shell, and should a man put up fierce resistance, they'll use that to bind him more strongly. Depending on the circumstances, they may cover all around themselves and their man with their shell. The result will be like a rocking cradle, but aside from the wet noises and cries of ecstasy, at a glance it won't look like anything but an enormous egg.

Being slimes, they have a body that enables them to have sex with men the moment they're born. They're skilled in wrapping their tongue around the penis and sucking on it to suck out semen with their mouth as if suckling milk from their mother's bosom. The yolk with the form of a jiggly little girl is always stickily melting so as to be able to receive a man at any time, and even though they don't know about anything else, they will shake their hips and enjoy the pleasure, and they will learn the rapture of released semen melding into their body.

In this manner, the first thing they will do as soon as they are born is to have sex with their husband. And that is what they will continue to seek for their entire lives. The first voice that they let out isn't a cry, but an alluring moan. They don't even know language at first and the first words that will come out of their mouth will be their husband's name, and numerous dirty words used during sex.

The "slime jelly" that can be collected from their yolk part has a flavor and taste similar to eggs used for food. It is very nourishing, and has a nutritional fortification effect. The body of a man who eats it will produce so much semen that if he does not ejaculate, it will just leak out in a sticky mess. It is purported that if one feeds it to their husband while having sex, no matter how many times he is milked, he'll never run out of semen. It is highly popular as an ingredient in sweets in Wonderland.

Additionally, they do not divide. Instead, they are the rare slimes that lay eggs. Jubjubs are born from the eggs, but there is a higher probability that they will become "humpty eggs" than eggs laid by jubjubs.

• Scylla Family • Mollusc Type

マインドフレイア Mindflayer

Habitat.....Caves, underground

Disposition.....Lustful, malicious

Diet.....Human minds

Grotesque enchantresses with tentacles growing from the head and lower body who form peculiar societies underground. Highly intelligent and dangerous with an extremely obscene mentality, they possess the power to manipulate the mind. They are of a different mind from even the radical faction of the Mamono Lord's army, and although they have been influenced by the Mamono Lord, they are not her underlings. According to one explanation; it is purported that they are a race that serves chaos monsters that slumber deep within the depths of the sea, and it is their duty to fill the land above with their minions. They appear aboveground seeking prey, and they will not only target human men who serve as their partners, but also actively assault human women to entice them into becoming the same race.

They seize their prey as if embracing them from behind and slip their tentacles into the prey's head through the ears to directly pour in mamono mana and pleasurable signals. The rational mind and thoughts melt away, and the mindflayer slurps them up. The prey's mind is consumed by pleasure and the watery sounds of the mindflayer's tentacles noisily stirring about inside their head. The prey will be completely helpless and unable to do anything but gasp and moan. If the prey is male, then a lewdly obscene mind suitable for the partner of a mindflayer will be implanted inside his defenseless head. Once a man becomes a being that exists to have sex with a mindflayer, his body and mind will no longer put forth any resistance at all when the mindflayer habitually coils around her husband using her body and tentacles to induce pleasure. Such men will even experience joy as their mind is melted and slurped out along with their mana.

On the other hand, in the case that the prey is female, it is said that she won't immediately be converted into a monster, and will instead be released while still human. However, just getting a whiff of the odor of a human man or his mana will be intoxicating, and she'll be unable to maintain her ordinary thought processes.

In all likelihood the woman will have been partially modified so that only parts of her memories, values, senses, and perception will be that of a monster. She may have been granted only "a monster's olfactory sense", or she may have been implanted with a monster value such as "taking pleasure in being sexually desired by others", or a false memory such as "becoming a monster and having sex with a man."

While a woman will retain her human body, she will be inflamed with a monster's passion, and learn the pleasure of being a monster. No matter how much she masturbates and has sex, she will never be able to experience fulfillment in her human body, and her mind will be eaten away. She will start to frequently recall the pleasure and watery noise of having her mind slurped, and despite having been released will end up making her way back to the mindflayer on her own. When the mindflayer enjoys herself by sipping the taste of the woman's mind, she will notice that it is changing into something appropriately obscene and befitting of a minion. As if to reward her, she will change the woman slightly closer to being a monster. As these events repeat, eventually the woman will beg to be changed into a monster. Sometimes such women will sexually assault men while still human, in order to show off and exhibit that they are of the appropriate mind to become a minion. After debauching her mind to such a degree, a woman will finally be accepted as a new "mindflayer."

Also, they themselves are always immersed in the obscene watery noises. Even if they don't have any prey, they will use their tentacles on their own bodies. In order to make sex with their partner more pleasurable and fulfilling, they continually melt their mind and reforge it into something even more obscenely debauched.

The squid-like thing covering their lower abdomen frequently squirms as if it were an entirely separate organism. They pat it lovingly with their tentacles and then it releases white viscous fluid. It is said "Men who become intimate with them are suddenly transformed into squids, becoming stuck coiled around their hips with a tentacle slipped inside their lower abdomen." This has been observed, but even when asked about the truth, the only response of the mindflayers is to smile alluringly.

• Toad Family • Amphibian Type

ミューカストード Mucus toad

Habitat.....Waterfronts, wetlands

Disposition.....Lustful, ferocious

Diet.....Carnivorous: bugs, wild animals, etc.

A toad monster covered in mucus to maintain its wet body. They possess great jumping power in their well-developed hind legs, and for the most part they move by hopping rather than walking. Because their hands and feet have suckers, they can stick to walls and ceilings. They inhabit wet places such as wetlands, and when they spot a human man, who will serve as prey, they extend their long, mucus-covered, tongue; using it to pull him close and capture him. As apparent from their moist eyes, they have lustful and stubborn personalities. Once a man is in their sights they are extremely persistent, and they will most definitely try to capture and violate him.

All of their bodily fluids such as sweat, saliva, and vaginal secretions are mucus. When their mucus-covered palms stick to a man's penis as they caress it, or when their sticky tongue covered in saliva wraps around his penis and strokes it as they perform orally, the pleasure induced is enough to fool a man into believing he is penetrating a vagina; and they will relentlessly slurp up his mana.

During intercourse, they prefer the cowgirl position. When they straddle a man's hips, they make their own hips bounce, as if hopping, causing the sound of their bodies crashing together and the sound of splattering mucus to resound. With their vagina sticky from slimy secretions engulfing a penis and persistently coiling around it, if they raise their hips, strings of mucus will stretch from it. Then when semen spews out, every last drop will be caught and greedily absorbed into their body due to the mucus. Every time they move their hips up and down, mucus is rubbed into the penis.

This mucus, which is infused with their mamono mana, is slightly toxic, and has the function of boosting a man's sexual stamina. For example, even after ejaculation, an erection will not subside, instead, its size and hardness will increase the more a man has sex with them.

Additionally, if a man they recognize as their husband has his mouth nearby, they'll behave almost like a toad reflexively seizing prey and spontaneously kiss him, plunging their tongue deep inside. And if their husband's penis is within their field of vision, they'll either suck on it, or straddle his hips and spontaneously initiate sex. Their mucus increases in viscosity according to their attachment and affection towards their husband. Once they get their husband's member inside them, they will not let go, and they will continue having sex until both of them pass out from the pleasure and their hips become unable to move.

In slight doses, their mucus will only incite sexual desire, but if a human woman ingests a large amount of it, it may cause monsterization. They aren't a race that actively assaults women, but should someone insult or inflict harm on them or their husband, they will exhibit their natural sticky disposition and attempt to rub large amounts of mucus into the woman's body and inside her mouth with their slimy tongue.

A woman won't immediately change into a monster from this, but her saliva will become sticky like mucus, and her mouth will become restless. She'll start to lick inside her own mouth and around her lips, making lewd wet noises. A woman in such a state will reflexively kiss a man she is fond of, and she may extend her tongue towards his nether region. The mana acquired then will often completely change her into a monster. Additionally, a woman may also reflexively kiss a close member of the same sex, in which case the damage from monsterization may spread.

• Slime Family • Half-liquid Type

ぬれおなご Nureonago

Habitat.....Zipangu region (plains, grasslands)

Disposition.....Simple, meek, devoted

Diet.....Human men's semen, saliva, sweat, etc.

A kind of slime that only inhabits the Zipangu region. In the same way as other slime family monsters, they have flexible bodies and can change into various forms. Out of all the slime monsters they are especially proficient in mimicry. They can form clothes that look and feel almost like the real thing. They usually go with a kimono, but they can freely make any clothing as long as they've seen it before. They use this ability to try to pass themselves off as human women, but since the clothing they make is always wet it's normally easy to see through it.

For that reason, it is said that they only show themselves in front of humans on rainy days. They appear near human settlements, highways, etc., standing dimly in the rain, gently smiling at the men who pass nearby. If, thinking that they're human women, the man returns the smile and calls out to them, then they end up recognizing the man as their husband and chasing after him for the rest of his life. If the man attempts to flee then they'll sense the presence of his spirit energy and follow him no matter where he goes, so it's impossible to successfully escape from them. Eventually, they'll even turn up at a man's home. Once she arrives at the man's home, she'll just start living there and behaving like his wife. Then she'll cover him with her damp, wet, liquid body, have sticky sex, and milk his semen.

Perhaps because they've evolved and adapted in the Zipangu environment, which has comparatively many docile and devoted monsters, even though they are slimes which fundamentally have low intelligence, the knowledge and techniques necessary to perform household chores as a man's wife is imprinted in their instinct. In this way they can skillfully and briskly take care of their husbands.

Also, they start to make their clothes according to their husband's desires. During semen milking they appear different from basic slimes which mate with hunger and lust. Somehow, it seems that there is devotion and service. In the same way as other members of the slime family, the number of individuals is increased through division. In the case of an ordinary slime, having just been born, the little slime's head would be full of thoughts of hungrily gorging on semen, but as for the nureonago, it is said that even after just being born they'll help their mother with the housework, having devoted behavior.

• Slime Family/Majin Family • Semiliquid Type/Majin Type

寄生スライム/スライムキャリア

Habitat.....Caves, ruins Parasite Slime / Slime Carrier
Disposition.....Simple / simple, varies
Diet.....Human men's semen, sweat, saliva, etc. (both of them)

A monster unique even amongst the slime family. Although they feed on men's semen, they can't assume the form of a woman, so they have a peculiar mode of life. They capture and infest human women, then use their new hosts to attack men. Besides dwelling in caverns and ruins, etc., they also sometimes sneak into human settlements via cargo. Lurking in narrow spaces or in the interior of armor, etc., they coil around human women as soon as they approach, enter their body, and infest them.

Slimes that have infested a human woman thoroughly train their hosts using pleasure so that they can obtain plenty of semen. A slime coiled around a host's body will fluidly crawl all over her entire body, continuously pleasuring her, and at the same time, awakening the erogenous zones throughout her body. The host's skin, constantly covered in slime and pleasure, is lewdly adjusted to be even softer and more sensitive to pleasure. Once the slime enters the host's body it causes her to go mad with lust. When it gets into her throat, stomach, womb, etc., it melts into the host's body from there and fuses with her.

Along with the mind-blowing pleasure, all of the host's organs are remade into a monster's spirit energy and pleasure hungry energy absorbing organs. Having been constantly violated by the slime inside and out, the host will be controlled by that pleasure, and rational human thoughts will be melted away by pleasure. With the host's mind clouded, she will finally end up entrusting her body to the slime in pursuit of more pleasure. And then the slime's monstrous desire to seek and love men will meld into and mix with the host's mind, such that they are interchangeable, and a new monster called a "slime carrier" will be born that has a lewd mind fixated on love and pleasure like a slime while still retaining the superior intellect and advanced thinking capabilities of a human.

By sipping the host's spirit energy during the training, the slimes grow so enormous that they can serve as mounts. They wander around seeking men as prey while carrying their hosts. If the host happens to fancy a particular man, then it is said that the slime will head towards that man by reading the host's memories and thoughts. When they find a man who will serve as prey, they let the host lure him, and when the man approaches to try and rescue the host, they capture him, drag him in, and make him have sex with the host on a bed of slime.

Slimes that have fused with their host function to spur the transmission of pleasure to their host and boost their rate of spirit energy absorption. Even though the host's body looks human on the surface, like a slime their entire body has become like a genital for the purpose of being sated with pleasure and spirit energy. Once spirit energy is poured inside, the slime infused throughout their body in every single place from the top of their head to the tips of their toes carries the spirit energy and transmits amplified pleasure. It is said that this causes so much pleasure to course through the host's entire body that they hallucinate as if their body melted into syrup, unable to retain human form.

Furthermore, the slime infesting the host can read her mind and automatically move, perform errands, or even eliminate foreign enemies. The host doesn't even need to be aware of such things, let alone do them herself, so she will end up leaving everything else to the slime while using her body and thoughts entirely for pleasurable sex with her beloved husband. And then, in order to spread that happiness to many human women, she will use her slime to increase her family after making it divide.

Queen Slime

• Slime Family • Semiliquid Type

Habitat.....Open places like plains and meadows

Disposition.....Simple, meek

Diet.....Men's semen, sweat, saliva, etc.

Mutant slimes that are called slime queens. As the name suggests, the main body is is a "Queen" found at the center, surrounded by several divisions who appear to be "Servants." It almost looks like a group of slimes that has gathered close together, but its actually a single monster.

The typical slime ability to divide is flawed in their case. They can't store up sufficient nutrients while dividing, and as result they have become bloated. The divisions have different abilities than the main body, but all are under the control of the main body, the "Queen." Their consciousnesses, thoughts and memories are all shared in common.

In the same way as other slimes, they are fueled by men's semen. Once they've spotted prey, they use their sticky body to wrap around a man and initiate sexual intercourse, taking in semen. However, because the main body is bloated, her movement is extremely slow and sluggish. For that reason, when initiating sex they send out their servants to charge in aggressively; insuring that sexual union takes place. Because of how immense their bodies are, they are much more greedy than a typical slime. Once a man is taken in by them, his fate is to spend the rest of his life continuing to have sex in the middle of a harem of them.

Queen slimes who have continued to have sex with a man over a long period of time grow in such a manner that they become almost like a village of slimes. They then are referred to as "Slime Kingdoms." As the size of the body of the queen itself becomes more and more immense, the intelligence of her divisions sharply rises. Divisions with various duties will begin to appear such as knights and mages to defend the queen and her man, huntresses to procure food for the man, and merchants to trade with other races.

As their intelligence continues to increase, the number of divisions increases, and even those with no specific duties will appear such as divisions resembling the man's elder and younger sisters. (If I must say it, their duty is probably to have sex with the man though.)

However, no matter how intelligent they appear to be, and no matter how many various divisions appear, their actions. are fundamentally driven by instinct. These instincts are the drive to feed (have sex), and the drive to further expand the slime kingdom. Most of the goods they trade for with merchants are medicines or items that increase the stamina of men.

Furthermore, since the queen and her divisions will only have sex with the man who is the king of slime kingdom that they've acknowledged as their husband, one would think that slime kingdoms would be safe since they have a man. However, once a slime kingdom grows large enough, other monsters will sometimes start to live there as well. The kingdoms are thus extremely dangerous especially because it's hard to distinguish between ordinary slimes and the queen's divisions.

Red Slime

• Slime Family • Semiliquid Type

Habitat.....Plains, grasslands etc.

Disposition.....Simple

Diet.....Men's semen, sweat, saliva, etc.

A higher type of slime that possesses a body of flexible red liquid. Compared with the "Slime" they are fewer in number. They live in places near human settlements like plains, grasslands, etc. They can be found amongst the regular slimes that live in the same kinds of areas.

They are physically and mentally more advanced than the slimes, especially when it comes to emotions. There are even some that have emotions that are almost entirely human. Compared with the slimes that mostly act based on instinct, they are a bit more rational and can easily convey their intentions. However, their diet is the same as a slime's; they feed on the semen of human men, and so, of course, just like slimes their heads are full of thoughts about wanting to have sex with men and feast on semen. On top of that, they are a bit more fierce than ordinary slimes; and as soon as they spot a human man, they will aggressively assault and try to have sex with him. Even though they're a bit smart, it doesn't change the fact that they're slimes whose bodies and minds have been melted with pleasure.

However, because they are more emotionally developed than slimes, they become fond of and target specific men. Depending on the individual, they become stubborn, or become shy and let their prey go most of the time; so they are overall less dangerous than the supposedly lower types of slimes.

As far as reproduction is concerned, it's the same as in the slime. They use extra stored nutrients to divide, producing more individuals. Compared to slimes, there is a more distinct parent-child relationship. That is they're aware of it, but to them it's normal and acceptable for a father, mother, and daughter to have threesomes. So in the end, what they do is no different than what ordinary slimes would do.

Roper

• Roper Family • Tentacle Type

Habitat.....Unknown

Disposition.....Lustful

Diet.....Semen of human men

Strange monsters that have a human upper body and gelatinous lower body, like that of a slime, from which long tentacles grow. It has been suspected that they may be a variety of plant type monster, but the truth is uncertain. Actually, they were not originally monsters to begin with, and their form is the result of them parasitically infecting human women and fusing with them.

Ropers start out appearing as egg-like, shell-covered, spherical objects; adult ropers seize human women with their tentacles and shove their ovipositor tentacle into the human's vagina to implant these "roper eggs". A roper egg implanted inside a woman will soon sprout like a plant, extending a small tentacle. It will spread its roots in the host woman's womb and fuse with her. A roper parasite will then remake the host's body from within. The host's lower body will change to become gelatinous like that of a slime, and numerous tentacles will appear from there.

During the roper's larval stage the host will still retain her human consciousness as is, but because the fusion between the roper and its host is incomplete the tentacles will ignore the host's will, and wriggle around doing whatever they please. In order for a roper to grow into adulthood, the semen of a human man is required. So when the tentacles moving on their own sense a man's presence, they'll entwine all over their host's body: tentacles wrapped around the breasts will rub them quite roughly, others will violate the host's mouth, spitting out large volumes of thick, sweet mucous (which will arouse her wildly), and still others inserted into the vagina will stir it up while making alluring wet noises. This will all cause her to cry out alluringly in ecstasy and lure the man.

After enticing a man in this fashion, when he draws near and takes the bait, he'll be seized by the tentacles and have the semen milked out of him. After ingesting a man's semen, a roper will rapidly grow, and completely fuse with its host.

A ex-human host that became an "adult roper" in this manner will have become one with it, so she'll be able to control the tentacles with her own will as though they were her own arms and legs.

However, after having been violated all over her body by tentacles, she'll become mentally deranged from the pleasure, and her way of thinking will change into that of a monster that desires even stronger pleasure and seeks human men. She'll make her tentacles crawl all over herself and churn her body even more violently and obscenely than they did when they were moving on their own, in an effort to excite carnal desire in a man. Once a man approaches, she'll use her tentacles to draw him near and guide him to her vagina. This time it won't just be the tentacles milking out the semen as in the larval stage. They'll use their tentacles and all of their own body for sex, and obtain semen. Also, after becoming an adult, the sensations of the host and the tentacles are shared, so the stimulation the tentacles receive is all transmitted to the host as pleasure. Afterward, by obtaining even more semen from the man she captured, she'll produce a new "roper egg", and will attack a human woman and implant the egg in her vagina in order to propagate her race. This is the manner in which the ropers multiply.

When a roper larva sprouts, if a woman is wearing clothing, then somehow even the clothing ends up being recognized as part of her body, and it too will become a part of her melted jelly-like body. Ropers have an extremely powerful regenerative ability and even if the main body and the tentacles are damaged, they will return to normal after a short time. Women who became ropers while wearing clothing as described above can melt the clothing according to the will of the host when having sex with a man. It's possible for them to expose their naked human body, or keep it covered as usual, but either way it will be treated as damage, and when they're done having sex with a man the clothes will regenerate exactly back to their original state.

Sea Slime

• Slime Family • Semiliquid Type

Habitat.....Ocean

Disposition.....Simple, docile

Diet.....Semen, saliva, sweat etc. of human men

A variety of slime adapted to life in the sea. Although it is classified as a semi-liquid type like other slimes, its form is fixed and cannot be freely changed. Perhaps this is so its body won't be washed away. It is able to use its skirt-like bell for swimming, but it prefers to drift about underwater, letting the current carry it.

While they do wash ashore on rare occasions, a sea slime is more likely to be encountered when she becomes tangled in a human fisherman's nets. Either way, once a human man passes near by, she'll spread her legs and bell wide to tempt him into having sex. She seldom needs to chase her target; fishermen on a long sea journey tend to be starved for female affection and are unlikely to resist her charms. While having sex, she gets strongly swept away by pleasure as if swept away by the ocean while swimming. If a man just violates her body and has his way with her, she'll receive that pleasure with her entire body, and she'll also react by twisting her body and shaking her hips as if to match it by returning the pleasure to the man.

Even during sex, sea slimes may appear to be docile, however, once a man gives in to temptation, she will not allow him to stop prematurely. Should he try to pull away, countless tentacles will emerge from beneath her bell to inject him with paralytic venom. She will then start rocking her hips back and forth violently to produce pleasure in place of her immobilized lover, and her body will not release him she is satisfied or he faints from exhaustion.

Like her land-based cousins, a sea slime's main food is human semen. Any energy she doesn't need is stored within her bell. When it accumulates to a certain level, division occurs, and the bell part will become a sea slime larva. A sea slime larva does not have a bell, and her lower body is completely exposed. This makes it perfectly convenient for her to mount the man whose semen she was created from and receive his penis inside. She will then do her best to squeeze out his semen with her tiny body.

• Slime Family • Semiliquid Type

ショゴス

Shoggoth

Habitat.....Caves, underground, human settlements

Disposition.....Devoted, lustful

Diet.....Human men's semen, saliva, sweat, etc.

A slimy monster that has an amorphous body. Long, long ago they were created by the chaos monsters as a race of servants, but it is purported that they fled from their former mistresses upon gaining intelligence and emotions with the ascension of the current Mamono Lord.

They have submissive, quiet personalities, and they do not attack humans. Even as of the present, it is said that in pursuit of a new master, they will appear before men who strike their fancy, or anyone who desires to employ them, and serve them devotedly.

They can create any kind of organ by morphing the cells of their body. They can also prepare any necessary tools with their own body, so their body itself is more than enough to sufficiently take care of all their master's needs. They prioritize the living comfort of their masters above all else, and the way they quietly serve makes them truly ideal servants. They even give off a vibe of purity, which is unmonsterlike.

But in actuality their whole amorphous body is an erogenous zone, and the organs they touch their master with are particularly concentrated with erotic sensations. When they wipe their master's body with a towel, at the same time it's also like caressing them using their own body. When they carry a spoonful of food to their master's lips, it's also like a sloppy deep kiss. To them, service is the equivalent of sex, and serving their beloved man is more than just mentally satisfying; the more they serve, the greater the gratification from bodily pleasure.

Despite enduring such pleasure, their work is not disrupted, and they will continue to quietly and calmly serve their master, but a glimmer of ecstasy that's like madness can definitely be glimpsed deep within their eyes. As for their madness, they wish to live as if they were one with their master by constantly serving him with their body.

They mostly obey their master's commands, but if he should refuse their service, they won't have any of it. They also don't like for him to use any already existing items, and ultimately, they will even try to get their master to use such things as a bed or chair made from their own body.

A physical change will occur among those who continue to receive their service. There isn't any apparent change in appearance, but, for example, if cut with a sword, it will pass through their body without damaging them; as if they had become a slime. When being served with the shoggoth's body, at the place where one has been touched, it will feel like one's body is melding together with the shoggoth's body, resulting in an experience of pleasure similar to sexual pleasure.

Once a man has experienced this pleasure, he'll start to constantly desire their service. The master himself will probably be the one to desire sex, which will involve melding together even more deeply. When having sex with them, it's like one another's genitalia melt together and become one during the union. The boundary between each partner becomes vague, and so much pleasure is induced that it becomes uncertain which of them is moving or which sensations belong to which person. Through sexual intercourse their master will touch upon their madness, and like them, will desire for the two of them to become one. In this way they will spend their lives having sex by melding together.

It is purported that the ecology of constantly desiring to become one with their man may be an incomplete imitation of the way that their creators, the chaos monsters, have sex with their husbands. Furthermore, it is said that the reason they fled from their mistresses is probably not because they were unsatisfied with their employment, but because they became envious from seeing the chaos monsters become one with their husbands and wished to acquire husbands of their own.

Slime

• Slime Family • Semiliquid Type

Habitat.....Plains, grasslands, etc.

Disposition.....Simple, docile

Diet.....Men's semen, sweat, saliva, etc.

Semiliquid monsters that mostly live in plains, grasslands, etc. near towns. Their blue, half-transparent bodies are flexible, and can change into various forms. They are intelligent enough to speak, but their thoughts are simple, and they instinctively wander around in search of human men who will end up as their prey.

When they spot a man, they extend their body and seize him, sealing his movement. They then ingest semen and the like from the man's body in a manner that appears almost like sexual intercourse. They can milk semen using any part of their body; a captured man will be enveloped by the entire slime and given rapturous pleasure.

As they store up nutrients, the excess portion of their body that doesn't form the shape of a woman will accumulate under their feet. Once it increases above a certain amount, a slime will divide, giving birth to a little slime that looks just like herself. Right after birth a slime's head is full of thoughts of feeding, and she'll immediately have sex with her own father who is right before her eyes. Until the little slime grows to a certain size, she will cling to her mother's excess part, and continue ingesting semen from her father together with her mother.

Because of their simple structure, slimes are extremely adaptable. Also, because they are easily influenced by magical energy and the environment, they evolve and transform in various corresponding ways, so there are numerous subspecies. These include red slimes (p.18), which are a higher rank variety, queen slimes (p.20), which are a variety of bloated mutants, bubble slimes (p. 132), which have been strongly influenced by the environment in which they live, and dark slimes (p.176).

It is also said that by continuing to have sex with a human man, or moving to live in another land, they can even change into another slime family monster.

• Slime Family • Semiliquid Type

太歳 (タイサイ)

Taisui

Habitat.....Mist continent: caves, underground

Disposition.....Mysterious

Diet.....Human men's semen, sweat, saliva, etc.

A race peculiar to the mist continent which have a bizarre appearance with countless eyeball-like organs all over their bodies. They just keep moving slowly underground almost as if following along a set path and do not appear on the surface of their own will.

Therefore, unmarried individuals only appear before people in limited cases, such as when someone discovers a taisui's path and deliberately digs her up, when someone wanders into a subterranean cavern that just happens to intersect a taisui's path, and so forth. In this way, they are quite a rare race, but the slime itself that makes up their bodies is regarded as a precious "elixir", so many people look for them. Due to similarities such as having a body comprised of slime, they are regarded as a variety of slime, but much is unclear about their ecology, so whether or not they are really slimes is debated. The most noteworthy point is that they are highly intelligent. It is said that if you could correctly understand a taisui's words, then you could even uncover the fundamental truths of the world. However, their behavior is bizarre and mysterious, and they often use words and expressions that are incomprehensible. They're probably too advanced for an ordinary person to understand.

There's not one bit of ferocity in their behavior towards men. They don't even do things like seizing and restraining men with their slimy bodies. On the other hand, it is said that they use countless mysterious powers, and they can even foresee the very moment when a man will appear before them. If such is the case, then in other words, if a man even encounters one, it means he's already definitely been determined to be her prey. Of course, there is no escaping the countless gazes of a taisui. They say a man subjected to that power will lose his sanity and begin acting strangely. For instance, he'll gradually strip, embrace the Taisui, and rub his naked body against her. He'll stick his penis in her face and indulge in masturbation until releasing semen on her face. Strange things like that.

Not only will she accept these strange behaviors towards herself with zero resistance, she'll even use her own body to increase the man's pleasure and induce ejaculation. The man will repeat these strange behaviors as a taisui will make no attempt to get away even after that. Instead of settling down, before long, the man will even go so far as to suddenly commit an act of violence and thrust his penis inside her slimy body. He will then continuously pour his essence inside the taisui. Since a taisui will accept it like it's only natural, perhaps they even foresee that such men will become beings that will constantly pour essence inside them.

Furthermore, since this ability is overwhelmingly powerful, it can even influence humans and monsters besides their prey in the surrounding area. For instance, I heard a certain monster began acting strangely. She stuck her face in the crotch of her husband who was walking next to her and started rubbing it against his penis. And she wouldn't stop even after her husband repeatedly ejaculated and covered her face in semen. Until coming back to her senses, she just kept rubbing her cheeks against it with an ecstatic expression. Other than cases like that one, the strange behavior only comes over men pursuing monsters or husbands of monsters, so it can be inferred that it is a sort of power that reduces amorous inhibitions towards nearby monsters or towards one's spouse.

Additionally, as previously mentioned, their meat, or rather, slime is considered to be "an elixir that grants superhuman intelligence" by consuming it. It is believed that the power of the elixir adapts to the body better the more you have sex with them, so it's absolute necessary to become a taisui's husband to gain the benefits, but the power is tremendous, so those who become their husbands mostly go down in history as sages or xian. With the intelligence acquired in this way, one could correctly understand their difficult and profound words that no ordinary person could, and it would be possible to hold a conversation at the same level. The true power of the elixir is to enable thoughts and knowledge to be shared between husband and wife.

• Shell Family • Mollusc Type

トリトニア

Tritonia

Habitat.....Ocean

Disposition.....Gentle, simple

Diet.....Omnivorous: eats anything

They are monsters who live in the ocean and originally possessed shells, however it is supposed that they abandoned their shells through the process of evolution due to the necessity of showing off their own bodies to males. Aside from crawling along the bottom of the ocean, they can wave the part of their body that flutters to move through the water as if floating. Their bodies are so soft that when touched by another person their hands will sink into it. Likewise, they are a docile race with a soft demeanor and temperament.

Their bodies are adorned with fins, and depending on each individual and the environment in which they live, there are many different beautiful colors and a variety of patterns, which makes them appear just like a lady wearing a dress. Those who behold the elegant figure of them swaying their fins will likely be charmed. The beauty of it entralls not only men, but women too, and even among humans, dresses that were patterned after their appearance are favored by noblewomen.

The feelers growing from their head sense the presence of men and unconsciously guide them towards them. It's said that occasionally they even come up to the surface. However, they themselves are extremely gentle monsters, and even if they do encounter a man, they just act spaced out or approach him in a calm and friendly manner, and would never aggressively attack. On the other hand, the tentacles that they have on their backs act autonomously from their will and thoughts, and upon sensing something moving behind them, they will automatically seize prey or attack a enemy.

If it's a human man that's there behind them, they will aggressively capture him due to the monsters' instinct, sometimes even coiling around his body, teasing him with pleasure to the point of ejaculation according to what some say.

They don't have any sensation in the tentacles on their back, but the feelers on their head are sensitive to men's mana, however, since they can only sense the location of a man extremely vaguely, they will just continue to search for a man who isn't in their field of vision regardless of the fact that they're actually carrying the man on their back. It is often the case that they will finally realize that a man is stuck in the tentacles on their back only after the mana has been squeezed out of him countless times by their tentacles. Thus in the situation of encountering a tritonia, hiding oneself is dangerous, and it's probably safer never to go behind them and instead inform them of your presence from the front.

They have a habit of recognizing things that have sunk into their own body as belonging to them. In the case that a man buries himself in their body, or even if they themselves, to look after him, embrace a man who was violated by their tentacles; in either case they'll recognize the man as their husband and seek to copulate. When having sex, they'll embrace a man to hold him inside their soft body and do it while gluing each others' bodies as closely together as possible. They like to have their husband's body sink inside their own more deeply. Besides just deeper pistoning, such things as deep kissing and burying one's face in their soft breasts are also likely to greatly please them.

Also, it's not just the man's body that they try to make sink inside them. If it's an unmarried individual, she basically won't refuse any man who wants her. And towards the man that became her husband, she'll show a deep tolerance as if she's willing to accept anything. When a man seeks them and begs for their affection, they experience powerful joy as if their husband's heart is sinking inside them and becoming theirs, so they will repeatedly gently embrace and have sex with their husband, continuously providing pleasure and comfort so that he will be dependent on them.