

• Wolf Family • Beastman Type

アヌビス

Anubis

Habitat.....Desert region / ruins

Disposition.....Honest, stubborn

Diet.....Omnivorous, prefers meat

A type of werewolf that inhabits the desert region. They inhabit ruins all over the desert region as the bosses of "mummy (p. 150)" soldiers, and it is their duty to protect the sleeping rulers of the ruins, the "pharaohs". They have high intelligence and the power of various curses. They're monsters with an intellectual and sincere disposition, which is rare among the wolf family.

As opposed to the sphinx (p.152) which guards the outside of the ruins, they watch over the inside of the ruins, and when they spot an intruder, they attack in an attempt to capture them using their curse power. If they happen to capture a human man that strikes their fancy, they will bring him back to their dwelling in order to make a husband of him. They have a controlling nature, and they will try to control every aspect of their husband's life, including planning his diet, and scheduling his activities, even when it comes to having sex.

They frequently give instructions, as if the relationship were that of a boss and her subordinate. If he doesn't obey their instructions, as "criminal punishment", he'll be afflicted with the "mummy curse" which changes one's body to be extremely sensitive to pleasure like that of a mummy, and he'll have to keep having sex with them until he passes out.

Additionally, they also afflict human female intruders with the above written "mummy curse" as well. In the case that a woman is afflicted with the curse, its effects are not temporary as they are with men. Instead, the woman will then be changed into a "mummy", and become a subordinate of the anubis.

They're normally calm, but they also have another face. They're extremely vulnerable and they easily get confused when something unexpected happens and things don't go as planned. If a man actually assaults them, then they get confused and aroused, and will end up seeking pleasure according to the wolf family's instinct. When this happens to them, everything they had planned in advance in their head goes somewhere else and disappears, and the schedule in their head becomes filled only with having sex with the man.

They become unable to think of anything else but having sex with the man, indulging in pleasure and mana, and becoming pregnant with the beloved man's child due to the semen released. Their ordinary dignified appearance is nowhere to be seen, instead, they just look like a nymphomaniac.

Indeed, no matter how rational a monster they are normally, it is the appearance of them drowning in pleasure and seeking nothing but a man that is closest to the monsters' fundamental instinct, and this is the monsters' true nature.

Baphomet

• Baphomet Family • Dark Beast Type

Habitat.....Mamono realms

Disposition....Strong-Willed

Diet.....Omnivorous: mainly preferring the flesh of beasts. Also, the mana of human men.

Dark beasts possessing tremendous power that lurk in mamono realms. Their outward appearance is that of a little girl, but of all the monsters, they possess the most physical power. They are the race that serves as the leaders of the pagan cult "Sabbath", commanding a countless number of witches. Also, it is said that one of them is the supreme leader of the Mamono Lord's army, and they are feared by humans and monsters alike.

The "Sabbath" they lead has the following creeds: "know the depravity and charm of little girls," and "give in to pleasure like a monster." In order to spread the doctrine and increase the number of adherents, they tempt women with promises of "great magic power" and "eternal youth." If seduced by the temptation, a woman's body will then be thoroughly inculcated in devilish pleasure at the hands of her and the witches. By being granted a portion of the baphomet's mana, they are changed into witches, the servants of baphomet.

Other races of monsters who join the faith have their bodies changed into those of little girls through the baphomet's power as well, and after that they never grow any older. Also, periodically their subordinates, the witches and the men who are their familiars (reference witch's page), have a gathering called "Black Mass" (reference the witch's page), where they have a feast of pleasure to reconfirm Sabbath's doctrine.

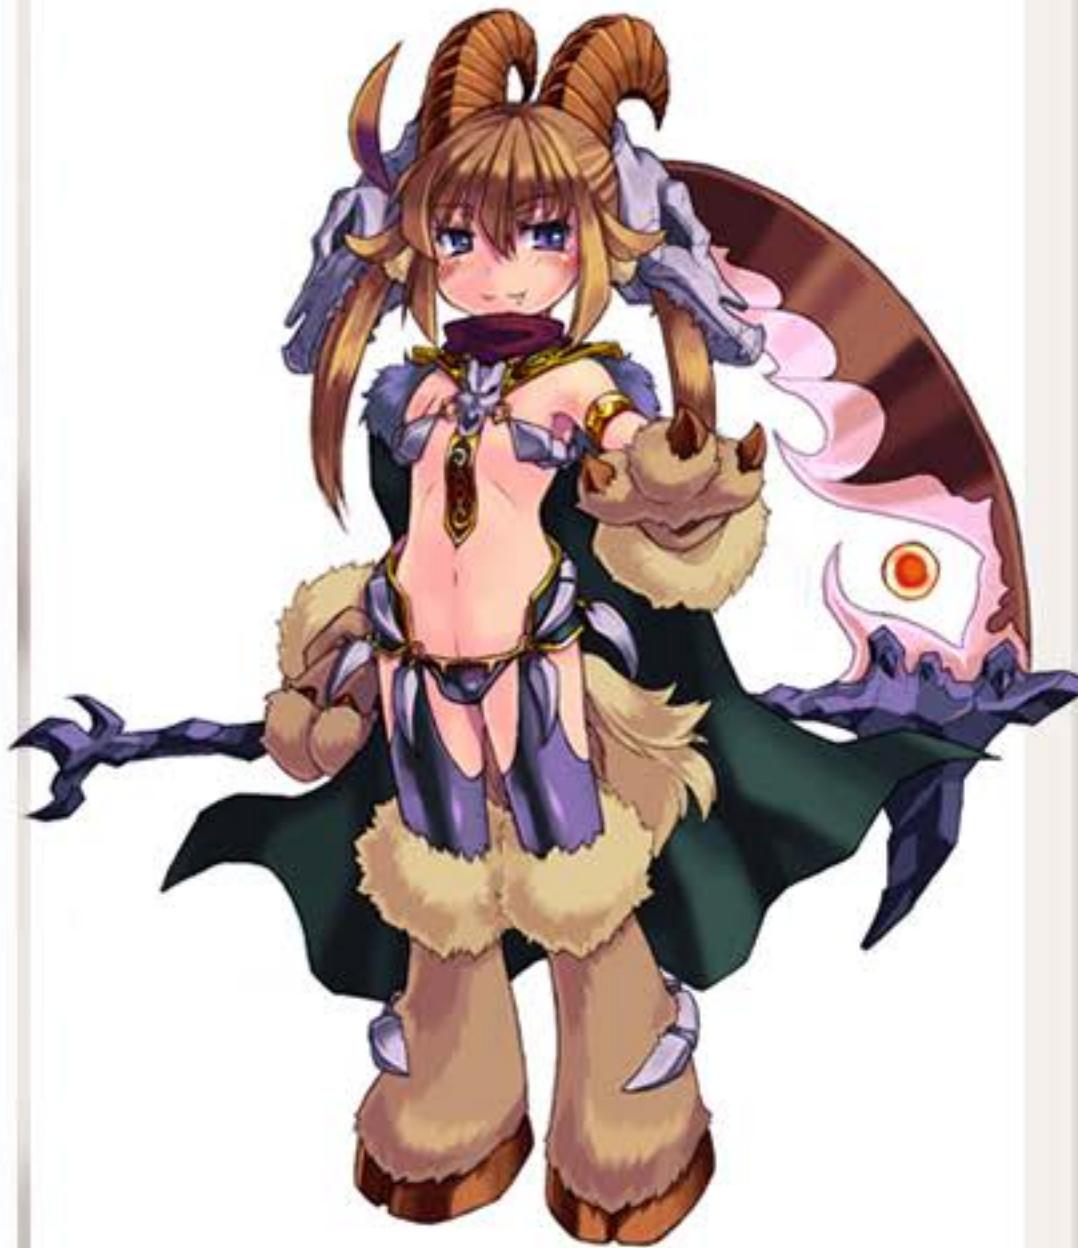

Most of them live in mamono realms, so they are hardly ever seen in human realms, but on rare occasions, they are also seen at places outside mamono realms. If you ever meet one of them, never assume you can defeat her. With average abilities, one would be hopelessly outmatched; any attack would backfire, it would only lead to being violated, and getting baptized by Sabbath.

Their bodies are tiny like those of children according to the doctrine of Sabbath, but they're packed full of the childish charm they espouse. With their body and technique, they're capable of pleasing men even more than a succubus can. They are especially known for having the most amazing vagina out of all monsters. Once a man has joined with one of them, the strong sucking and tight squeezing will make him feel like his own body has become one with hers, and he'll sink into the sensation of having everything sucked out by her.

Those who've had sex with them even just a little are physically indoctrinated in the "depravity and charm of immature little girls", and their bodies and hearts are remade so that they can only lust for immature little girls like them.

Because they also seek superior men as their husbands in the same way as other upper rank monsters, most men they catch will be released, but many of the men assaulted by them actually come to adore the baphomets, and they will run off someplace with her and the witches and disappear.

In most cases baphomets will accept as a husband a man with enough power to defeat them. It said that they seek "an ideally strong and gentle big brother who is reliable and will shower them with love and attention," but the truth is uncertain.

• Centaur Family

• Beastman Type

バイコーン

Bicorn

Habitat.....Demon Realm, forests

Disposition....Gentle, devoted, lustful

Diet.....Human men's spirit energy

A variant of unicorn that has an alluring black coat and two horns. When a unicorn has sex with a non-virgin or her husband cheats on her, the man carries that woman's demonic energy, and she then gets infused with the other woman's demonic energy along with her husband's spirit energy when he pours it into her. Due to this, the demonic energy of the unicorn which had been kept pure becomes mixed with another woman's demonic energy and gets corrupted, changing into the demonic energy of a bicorn, which in turn ends up changing the unicorn into a "bicorn." They have the same gentle disposition and graceful behavior as the unicorns, however, their true nature is exceedingly lascivious, and these monsters are regarded as "the symbol of impurity," celebrating a lustful, hedonistic existence.

Though wildly lustful, they do not forcibly rape men, but they are adept in the ways of arousing lust in men. Men they go after will be unable to resist their sweet temptation, and will eventually have sex with them when seduced. Exactly opposite of the monogamous unicorn, it's in their nature to prefer a polygamous harem arrangement where their husband has many monsters as wives. As far as they're concerned, their husband becomes a more lustful, hedonistic existence by having sex with many monsters. Also, letting many women know the taste of their beloved husband in a harem arrangement brings them more joy than anything else. Additionally, their husband's spirit energy, which gets mixed and corrupted with the demonic energy of various monsters, becomes like a cocktail, and it is said to be their favorite treat.

Normally, the demonic energy monsters pour into their husbands assert that they belong to them, and functions to repel other monsters. The bicorn's demonic energy is different. The scent of the spirit energy of a man infused with it ends up becoming thicker and stronger. Thus, since he becomes extremely attractive and delicious looking to other monsters, it's just the opposite. It attracts other monsters to their husband. Of course this goes for the woman who caused them to become a bicorn, but if there are any other women who their husband desires, or any women who desire their husband, they'll train them into lascivious monsters that are appropriate partners for them and their husband, making them a member of the harem for their husband's sake.

Even should their husband be resistant towards the idea of a harem, they'll lure him into it by sprouting the seeds and fanning his desire for other women. Additionally, every time a new monster joins the harem, the bicorn's demonic energy grows relatively thinner, so there is a limit on the number of people, but it's probably easy to make a small scale harem of about 5 or 6 people.

• Cat Family • Beastman Type

ケット・シー

Cait Sith

Habitat.....Human settlements, Cat Kingdom

Disposition....Selfish, capricious, haughty

Diet.....Omnivorous, prefers meat

A type of beastman born from the monsterization of cats that were animals. Even among the cat family, these beings are especially close to beasts, and their entire bodies are covered in fur. When a cat joined to its male owner by a strong bond has developed feelings of love for him and is showered in mamono mana, it will transform into one of these "cait siths". Possessing extremely high intelligence, they have been given the duty of ruling cats along with magical power, and they can cast various spells.

Just like their outward appearance, they're close to cats that are animals on the inside too. They have selfish, capricious personalities, and perhaps because of having been spoiled by humans, they consider themselves and other cats to be of a higher standing. They display an arrogant attitude towards men, speaking in a manner such as the following: "If you think I'm that cute, then I'll let you pat my head." "If you say you want to mate with me that much, then I'll make you my male."

On the other hand, if petted, they can't help but purr, and they naturally snuggle up to their partners to have a sniff of their scent. In this way, when it comes to the man they've acknowledged as their own male, they lose control of themselves. Their body and heart, being close to that of a beast, will react very honestly to the actions of a male. They easily go into heat when enveloped in the warmth and odor of a male, and after becoming only female beasts, they'll affectionately rub their entire body against the male.

At times, they even lose their capacity for speech and will just try to mate while moaning in an alluring manner. When in heat, as females, the only thing in their head is to receive the bestial lust of the male and become pregnant. When mating, they rock their hips to guide the penis deeper and deeper towards their womb, and it will be intense like that of an animal.

The "Cat Kingdom" created by the cat goddess "Bastet" is a cat paradise where various cat family monsters live, as well as ordinary cats. As long as men living in the kingdom obey the law and adore cats, they are promised a life with all of their necessities taken care of; but the law absolutely favors cats. Men are obligated to spoil cats, and give in to their demands, whether playing with them, or mating with and impregnating them. Also, it seems tormenting a cat is considered a serious crime, whether or not it took place within the kingdom. If one torments cats, and a cait sith receives a report from the other cats, she will abduct that person and carry them off to the Cat Kingdom.

One of their duties is also to punish criminals who have been brought back to the cat kingdom. If the culprit is male, then his human rights will be stripped away, and he will become the property of them and their cat underlings. He will become a "cat toy" that will be played with and milked by the cats whenever they feel like it, 24 hours a day. On this occasion, they will cast "a spell to make him vulnerable to cats" on the man, such that he will become extremely sensitive to the cats' tongues and paws. If fondled with them, he will immediately lose strength, and unable to resist the pleasure, he will easily spurt out semen.

Eventually, by the time he has served out his sentence and become his owner's husband, he will have changed into a cat lover whose erection will never weaken when he's around a cat. He will spoil the cats and pour semen into them as they desire.

If the culprit is female, then they will cast "a spell to change her into a cat", and she will be changed into one of the cat family monsters. The new cat will have to live surrounded by her senior cats who are nasty with a love of mischief. They will train her as much as they please and instill her body with a sense of what it is to be a female cat.

Centaur

• Centaur Family • Beastman Type

Habitat.....Grasslands, forests

Disposition.....Ferocious, lustful

Diet.....Carnivorous, wild animals, etc.

A beastman type monster with the upper body of a human and lower body of a horse, most of whom live in grasslands, etc. Most of them are excellent warriors, galloping around the grasslands with their powerful legs and loins, wielding swords and bows & arrows. They live by hunting wild animals, etc.

Most of them place great importance in one's pride as a warrior, so they're normally calm and rational. Due to this, they don't do such things as attacking humans. The centaur race has produced many heroes and sages since ancient times. This is because every member of the race has this way of thinking: "Do not sully the name of the heroes of the past."

However, they naturally have a violent and lustful disposition. They lose control unexpectedly and reveal their true nature. In the case of extreme individuals, just being touched by a human man will make them go wild with lust, revealing their ferocious and lustful nature. In accordance with their hot, throbbing body, they'll attack the man extra savagely in proportion to how much they normally restrain themselves, and enjoy the pleasure and sex that they wanted so badly.

They're even more troublesome when they come back to their senses and calm down after attacking a man. When they're calm, they have an extremely strong sense of purity, and they may have an outburst of anger as soon they come back to their senses. They may chase him around, demanding he take responsibility. However, their devilish nature, which is their true nature, says "take responsibility", so they can get a man, and then whispers to them, "have sex with the man and indulge in pleasure to your heart's content."

They hate letting men ride on their back, and they only make an exception for the man they acknowledge as their husband. If he requests it, they'll reluctantly let him ride, but since their body will be glued to the man's body during this, their body will get very hot and they'll go wild with lust.

By the time a man arrives at his destination riding on them, they'll be totally ready for intercourse, and he's liable to get attacked once they become unable to bear the heat and desire.

All monsters in the centaur family have another vagina, aside from the horse vagina located at their rear which they've had since the era of the former mamono lords. It's in the front at the boundary of the human upper body and the horse lower body (in the same position as a human woman), and it was newly formed when their body changed to become more suitable for intercourse with a man upon the dawning of the era of the new Mamono Lord. They can have sex with a man and become pregnant no matter which one is used. The rear vagina has also changed to become small and tight, capable of squeezing, matching the human size so it is suitable for intercourse with a human.

• Cat Family • Beastman Type

チエシャ猫

Cheshire Cat

Habitat.....Wonderland

Disposition.....Lustful, mean, capricious

Diet.....Omnivorous, prefers meat

A race peculiar to "Wonderland". They're the guides of this curious and lewd kingdom. The progenitor of this race was a "werecat" that wandered into Wonderland and hit it off with the lady of the land, "The Queen of Hearts", because of a common love of mischief and was given power as a servant of the queen.

They're always grinning and smiling lewdly with a lustful and unpredictable personality. They love fun and lewd things, and they tease those who wander into Wonderland with obscene words, whether male or female, making overt sexual overtures and enjoying the person's reaction. Their duty is to guide visitors of Wonderland, but with their guidance, what lies ahead is a variety of curious and obscene occurrences, sex-crazed monsters that are after visitors, etc. They're overjoyed, and the smile on their face further deepens when they see visitors getting teased by them and ending up in a sexual situation.

They have the ability to freely appear and disappear. As long as they're in Wonderland, they're monsters that can suddenly pop up unexpectedly anywhere. By the time a visitor notices, they'll be right on top of them, groping their body from behind, and making their tongue crawl all over while whispering filthy dirty words in their ear. Words spun with the sweet, enchanting timbre of their voice somehow feel obscene and lewd even when the topic of discussion is completely unrelated to sex, and when they whisper it easily melts into the hearts of those bewildered by Wonderland.

While being shown the lewd spectacles of Wonderland, visitors will be tempted with words such as, "You want to join in, and get off like that. You're filthy, aren't you?", and even if they had no such intentions their body will grow hot and seek pleasure. Their thoughts will be consumed by lust and envy towards the spectacle before their eyes.

Then, just as the cheshire cat said, "I want to have sex (I want to become a monster) and get off like that" will become true inside the visitor. And then, while continuing their "tour", the visitor's values and common sense will all be stained in the color of Wonderland. By the time they change into an incubus or monster, they'll have totally become a resident of Wonderland.

Furthermore, they're usually just guides. They mostly devote themselves to observing visitors. However, there is an exception if they take a liking to a man. They may aggressively interfere in order to make the man their own husband. They'll enjoy sex with the man during obscene occurrences, and gradually stain him completely in the lewd color of their preference.

After obtaining a husband they become even more lascivious. Life with these happily smiling girls is full of pleasure and absent of boredom and agony in spite of their teasing. Also, sometimes they become playful with men and exhibit cat-like behavior, which is different from how they normally are, but they only show this side of themselves to their husband.

• Chimaera Family • Demon Beast Type

キマイラ

Chimaera

Habitat.....Wastelands, volcanic regions, mountainous regions

Disposition.....Ferocious (various, depending on personality)

Diet.....Omnivorous, wild animals, fruits/vegetables, etc. human men's mana

Formerly a hybrid beast born from a combination of several demon beasts via sorcery. Typical individuals are endowed with the various traits and abilities of the demon beasts "lion", "dragon", "goat", and "snake".

Their bodies possess the superhuman strength and durability of a dragon, along with the instantaneous power and flexibility of a lion. Furthermore, with high intelligence and magical energy like a baphomet, they also have the ability to cast spells, and their snake-tail is equipped with venom that paralyzes prey. Each of these abilities is a bit weaker compared to that of the original demon beasts, but they're able to effectively use them in combination. On top of that, these astonishing demon beasts can release flames from their head, tail, and both arms, firing out flame breath four times in a row like a raging billow.

They are equipped with a combination of the special traits of various demon beasts, but their most notable aspect is that they possess multiple "personalities", equivalent to the number of demon beasts they were formed from, all contained within their single body. The disposition and thoughts of each personality are quite different. In the case of a typical individual, they possess each of the following personalities:

"Lion: impulsive, magnificent, and belligerent. Proficient at hunting prey, she will aggressively attack and attempt to mate if there's a human man who strikes her fancy."

"Dragon: noble, overbearing, and prudent. She will remain relatively calm and composed, even in the presence of a human man."

"Goat: highly intelligent and of a warm disposition, but extremely lustful and calculating. She will spoil a man and lead him into corruption."

"Snake: deeply jealous and cunning. She's dependent on the man she seized, and also excels at making him dependent on her. She will never let a man escape."

They're able to switch between and use these personalities depending on the situation. Yet, no matter what, these are just the "personalities" that standard individuals possess. There are differences depending on the character of each individual. There are also individuals among them who have characteristics other than those of the four demon beasts mentioned earlier, and the personalities contained within may be entirely different in terms of disposition and thoughts. Also, rarely, there are individuals whose body is comprised from a lesser or greater number of varieties of demon beasts than usual, and in such cases, the number of personalities also varies.

In this way, each of their personalities varies significantly, but ultimately they're all part of the same individual. Their knowledge and memories are shared in common, and they'll always acknowledge the same man as their husband. Perhaps for that reason, if any one of their personalities becomes aroused, all of their personalities will become aroused without exception, including the normally calm dragon personality. Furthermore, for whatever reason, each personality's desire towards their husband won't be satisfied just from one personality having sex with him. Instead, the other personalities will even get jealous of the personality that had sex with their husband, and conversely, this will end up rousing all their urges and desires towards him. With multiple personalities' worth of layers of desire and love towards their husband, they're only finally able to satisfy their unsettling passion by having sex with him with each and every one of their personalities.

• Wolf Family • Beastman Type

クー・シー

Habitat.....Human settlements
Disposition....Honest, obedient, devoted
Diet.....Omnivorous: prefers meat

A kind of beastmen that originate from pet dogs bound to their masters by deep love that desired a body more suitable for serving their master, and due to this, transformed into monsters after being showered in mamono mana. Since they were originally dog animals, these beings are close to beasts, and their entire bodies are covered in fur. Since they monsterized due to a desire to wholeheartedly serve their master, they are extremely loyal, and it wouldn't be an exaggeration to say that everything they do is for the sake of their master.

After becoming a monster, their excellent olfactory sense can discern more than just odors. They become able to sense when danger is approaching their master, as well as hostility from foreign enemies. With the powerful and nimble body of a beast, they can protect their masters from all sorts of threats. They are highly intelligent, and loyal to their master's orders, and if instructed, they can master most things including: using human weapons and tools, reading and writing, and cooking food suitable to human tastes.

Among them, there are even some cu sith that have become diligent scholars with a command of sorcery for the sake of their wizard masters. Also, they say that some cu sith are so well versed in etiquette due to their royal masters that they behave in such a refined manner that they can be mistaken for being nobility in high society.

In this way, they can be more than just mere watchdogs, and they possess the qualities necessary to become excellent knights and attendants. But no matter how much they serve, they never demand a reward. Just getting praised and petted by their master seems to be enough to make them happy from the bottom of their heart. It is said that due to such praiseworthiness, most masters prefer to keep them by their side, and will end up showering them with even more love than when they were ordinary dogs.

Cu sith

In this way, they are intelligent and obedient, but as one might expect given the fact they were originally beasts, they harbor powerful bestial urges. When they become monsters, their body that is made so that they can serve their master will be a female body for the sake of bearing their master's offspring. Whenever they feel the warmth of their master or have their nostrils tickled by his scent, their body will throb, delightfully hungering for his seed. If pursued by their master, they would gleefully offer their body, but as long as it's not what the master desires, they themselves won't attack. For instance, even if their lust swells up so much that the slovenly expression of a bitch in heat with enraptured eyes and a tongue hanging out appears on their face, out of loyalty for their master, they will continue to bear it with determination.

However, regardless of their will, since they're a beast, their body will release pheromones towards the male once they are in heat. The pheromones will appeal to their master's male instinct, informing him that there's a bitch in heat ready to mate at any time that can be exclusively his. Once a man's male instinct recognizes the cu sith as a female, naturally he'll start to lust for her, and his penis will tower for the sake of impregnating the female.

If they both continue self-denial in such a state, eventually their lust will turn into bestial lust, and reason will be unable to suppress it. The two people will turn into two dogs. Under the domination of bestial lust, the master will mount the female just like a male dog, and forgetting even language, he'll indulge in the female's flesh, violating her by violently banging his hips against her. Meanwhile, the bitch will realize that she's being used entirely for the sake of her master, and experience instinctive joy for having her body and heart dominated by her master, and she'll also forget language, only crying in an alluring manner to arouse the male's bestial lust even more and swaying her hips to guide his manhood even deeper inside.

• Mouse Family • Beastman Type

ドーマウス Dormouse

Habitat.....Wonderland

Disposition....Calm, passionate

Diet.....Omnivorous, eats anything

A peculiar race of "Wonderland", also known as "sleeping mouse". Upset by her restless and impatient nature, "The Queen of Hearts" cast a sleep spell on a "large mouse" who then became the progenitor of this race.

They tend to have a calm and dreamy personality. They're always drowsy, and they spend most of every day sleeping. They have no problem sleeping while walking, and amazingly can even carry on conversations with others by muttering in their sleep. It seems they can still hear the sounds around them in their dreams even while sleeping, and they can definitely hold conversations while asleep, but sometimes the topic gets distorted, and they can't understand.

They don't attack human men themselves. Not only that, even if a man is nearby, they just ignore him and sleep. However, they're most dangerous in this state, as an extremely large amount of demonic energy is released by them while sleeping, and it will shower the man. A man showered in their demonic energy will become fiercely aroused by the sight of them sound asleep, and rape them in their sleep. Even so, they still won't wake up, experiencing sex as a dream.

However, perhaps because they're at the boundary between dream and reality, part of it will be twisted in a dreamlike fashion. In reality, the man is violently raping them, and selfishly pouring his desire inside, but to them it's like they're being passionately embraced with an overwhelmingly powerful love, so it's a dreamlike spectacle. In the same way, when the man mutters words during the act such as slight praise like "cute", or comments on the condition of their body like "feels good", "it's the best", etc. it will be distorted into "sweet whisperings while making love." The man will be firmly etched in their mind as their fated lover.

Regardless of whether or not they're sleeping, a monster's instinct naturally shakes their body, ensuring that the sex is not just one sided, and the man can enjoy the pleasure of making love. Their belly becomes full of semen, and by the time they wake up, they're in the man's embrace and he likely will not even consider letting them go.

Being in the embrace of the man who became their husband like this is what most calms them down. They'll happily sleep there in his arms for even longer. In other words, the time spent having sex increases substantially. Furthermore, as soon as their husband goes away, they wake up and start anxiously looking for him. But anyhow, the husband, the man who screwed them in their sleep, wouldn't try to leave them. On the contrary, he would want to deepen their bonds.

Their demonic energy is very sweet, almost a flavor like molasses. It's supposedly excellent when mixed in tea, and if one drinks it and goes to sleep one can have a wonderfully sensual dream. For that reason one can occasionally catch a glimpse of the denizens of Wonderland shoving dormice into giant teapots. When a human woman drinks it, she'll change into a dormouse without exception, so be careful.

• Griffon Family • Dark Beast Type

グリフォン Griffon

Habitat.....Mountainous areas, desert areas
Disposition.....Ferocious, arrogant, bold
Diet.....Carnivorous: wild animals, etc. (especially prefers horse meat)

A dark beast that has both the wings of an eagle and the lower body of a lion. They inhabit secluded areas deep in the mountains and the vicinity of desert ruins, and were once given a duty by the gods to protect their treasures sleeping within the ruins, or the ruins themselves. Even in the present, they adhere to those duties and continue to protect the treasures.

Their dispositions are extremely wild and ferocious, and they'll mercilessly attack and attempt to drive away anyone who approaches the treasures they guard no matter who it is. They also have prideful and daring personalities, and it is said that they have even fought and driven away "dragons" who came to collect treasure. And so, they look down on humans as greedy tomb raiders who are after the gods' treasures, and display a haughty attitude.

However, they are also firmly endowed with the monster's instinct to seek human men. Even before they changed into their current form they were sensitive towards the desires that humans possess; and due to that they're both able to sense the presence of tomb raiders, and have had a habit of being more ferocious towards them the higher the intensity of the raider's desire. In the present, their ferocity towards men has changed from bloodlust to obscene carnal desire, and the stronger the desire possessed by a man is, the stronger their lust towards a man will grow, and they'll be dying to ravish him.

Usually other arrogant monsters regard humans as lowly creatures and hesitate to have sex with them, but that sentiment is nowhere to be found in the griffon's case; they suddenly attack and attempt copulation without hesitation. They swoop from the sky and pin men down, and there isn't any way to prevent it.

In the blink of an eye, they'll be straddling a man, and as expected, they won't hesitate to take his penis deep inside and shake their body with furiously wild hip movements. As the desire of men naturally leads them to come after the treasure, so too do the griffons enjoy the pleasure of violating and subjugating such insolent men according to their own desire.

However, while continuing to have sex like that, a change will come over the two. Because she is a monster, the griffon's body will charm the man through sex; his desire towards the treasure will diminish, and instead, his desire to have sex with the griffon will swell. Just like materialistic desire and the thirst for wealth, it will fan the flames of her ferocity; however, desire directed towards the griffon herself will raise not only carnal desire, but the monster's female desire to couple with the male. By providing her husband pleasure with her own body, which results in her husband desiring her even more, she'll experience ecstasy and a rapid heartbeat unlike anything she had ever felt before; she'll lose control and become engrossed in having sex with her husband.

"When it was directed towards the treasure I was supposed to protect, I only felt disdain or even hatred towards the desire possessed by humans; I had no idea that it could be something so lovely and pleasant if directed towards myself."

As a result of changing so that she dotes on her husband even more than the treasure she is supposed to guard, she'll end up focusing on her husband so much that the treasure she's supposed to protect will frequently be missing from her thoughts. Thus she may even neglect her original duty, or something like that.

• Bear Family • Beastman Type

グリズリー

Grizzly

Habitat.....Forests, mountainous regions

Disposition....Gentle (ferocious)

Diet.....Omnivorous, prefers wild animals, fish, etc.

A type of beastman monster with the characteristics of a bear. They're normally dopey, but when it comes to attacking human men they are dangerous monsters that exhibit freakish strength and unbelievable speed. Their favorite food is alraune nectar, especially the sweet honey it becomes after it is processed by honey bees. They frequently attack alraune and honey bees to lick this honey, and their face and paws get covered in sticky honey.

They enjoy the sweetly melting taste of honey. Because of this, honey thoroughly soaks into their right paw which they typically use to scoop it out. Their right paw always gives off the sweet scent of honey, and if they lick it, the taste of thick, sweet honey will spread through their mouth. They're ordinarily calm, and dopey, but sometimes they get turned on from sniffing and licking the scent and flavor soaked into their right paw. This turns them ferocious, and then they'll attack human men.

Their bestial olfactory sense can sharply detect human men, and depending on the circumstances they may come into human settlements and knock down men with their freakish strength and unbelievable swiftness. A man seized in their arms will be forced to sniff the fragrance of the honey up close, so his thoughts will become vague. Then, while he's unable to even resist, he'll end up having sex with them while they have also had their body and mind melted away by the honey in the same way. Even right in the middle of sex, the fragrance of the honey that soaked in will continue to linger. As they have more and more sex they succumb to the pleasure even more, their arousal increases, and they become more ferocious.

When they end up stained pure white in a man's semen, they finally return to their normal dopey state. However, after growing fond of the feeling of hugging a man, they'll hold him dearly in a firm embrace with their huge arms and bring him back to their den. Normally, they're very calm, and men carried off by them will be treated very gently and carefully in their den.

Usually they affectionately stroke their man, and embrace him firmly between their own breasts. Also, when they sleep, they embrace their man the same way as a little girl sleeping with a plush toy, and they like to rub their face against him. However, once they get a lick of honey, or their honey soaked paw, they quickly change back into a ferocious beast like when first encountered, and the man will end up getting fiercely violated.

Furthermore, it is said that if one encounters a grizzly, one way to deal with it is this: "If you play dead, they'll let you go." This is a mistake. If a man were to actually throw himself down on the ground in front of them, from their perspective it would only look like he was lying down as an invitation to mate. Thinking that the man welcomes their advances, they'd probably rush him with joy.

刑部狸

Tanuki Family

Beastman Type

Gyoubu
Danuki

Habitat..... Zipangu Region (human settlements, forests, mountainous areas)
Disposition..... Cheerful, ill-natured, lustful
Diet..... Omnivorous, prefers meat

A beastman type monster having the characteristics of a tanuki. They're one of the most famous yokai mentioned in tales, along with inari. They can use various spells to deceive people, including spells of transformation, and illusionary spells. Their "spell of anthropomorphosis" is especially tricky. They can change not only their shape, but also their scent and the aura given off by their magical energy into those of humans. It's so effective that heroes or monsters with only scant knowledge of the magical arts wouldn't be able to catch on to their true nature. Their race is highly intelligent, and has a unique flair for business. Many of them live as merchants or money lenders. They're extremely adept at handling "money" which we can say equals power in human society. At a glance, they seem cheerful and amicable, but their true nature is wily. Using the spell of anthropomorphosis and their financial prowess, they live amongst humans while secretly maneuvering to seize human men as well as control over society itself. Many gyoubu danuki are among the pillars of human society.

When they seize a human man, they use the power of money, smooth talking, and schemes. They usurp control of human territories and merchant families. They buy out entire impoverished families at once, seizing not just the man himself, but all related properties, social ranks, etc. They also use atrocious, coercive methods involving the use of smooth talking and illusionary spells to deceive men, and force them into debt. It's not uncommon to find men who pay off the debt by offering them their body. By seizing capital and social standing in this way, they force men into obedience and claim them for themselves. So great is their appetite for sex that they're even referred to as "lust incarnate," and after having sex with them just a single time, the men are already defanged. Their mastery of the art of cajolery ensures future obedience, and soon they own not only the man's wealth, but his heart as well. The men end up entrusting everything to them on their own.

Though their deeds may seem quite atrocious, it's not all in the name of self-profit, or for the sake of bringing about the ruin of humanity. They are monsters, and their husbands are human, so the reason they seek to seize control over human society is to remake it so that it will be easier for them to spend lascivious days together. Their objective is to make it so that they and other human-monster couples can live in happiness. For example, if they take control of a territory, it develops into a monster-friendly territory. If they take over a merchant family, business grows due to their performance.

They bring wealth to all the poor families they buy out, and as wives they end up giving back even more wealth and love to the men who offered their bodies to pay off their debts. Since they bring wealth and prosperity to men and families they set their eyes on, many people treat them as "symbols of economic fortune."

Additionally, although they mainly inhabit Zipangu, being merchants, many of them travel outside of Zipangu. They can probably be found throughout the world setting up shop, or working as peddlers. In such cases, if they're doing business in monster form, they'll never lie, and always be truthful, so one can have peace of mind. However, on the contrary, if they're in human form, they sell products like "prisoner fruit," "succubus' nostrum," etc. stuff that causes monsterization, while trying to pass it off as "good for health and beauty," etc. Since their businesses are often sketchy, they're regarded as dangerous.

• Minotaur Family • Beastman Type

白澤(ハクタク)

Habitat.....Mist continent (near lakes, rivers, etc.)

Disposition.....Calm, cool

Diet.....Omnivorous: prefers wild grasses, etc.

Hakutaku

A race of sagacious beastmen who possess such vast knowledge that they are said to be experts on everything. They are purported to impart wisdom to humans who come seeking advice on how to deal with calamities such as natural disasters and illnesses, and depending on the country, they are treated as sacred beasts rather than monsters. They devote themselves entirely to accumulating knowledge, and they have the ability to acquire information on anything they see or touch. They are knowledgeable in a variety of fields, but especially so when it comes to monsters; they have knowledge of not only the monsters that live in the mist continent, but also monsters all over the world. If one were to ask them, they would provide information about the race as well as the most effective method of dealing with them.

However, the "method of dealing with them" wouldn't be a method to exterminate monsters. The "actions effective on monsters" that one would hear from them would be behaviors that make it easier to be liked by that race. "Effective items" would be accessories imbued with the mana of a specific race used to attract that race. "Weak points" would be things that please a monster and help a man captivate her body and heart. In other words, the information they provide is a method to make certain one becomes joined in marriage to a monster of a specific race. There is no end to the number of people who know this and visit so that they can be wedded with their desired race, but there are also many who do not know and visit seeking wisdom for the sake of exterminating monsters only to effectively end up becoming the husbands of monsters.

As teachers, they are of the finest caliber, and there are too many examples to name of pupils who went on to become well-known scholars or sorcerers. Their tutelage is accurate and easy to understand, but perhaps because they are monsters, the teaching method they use for men who strike their fancy will gradually become more in depth and involve physical contact so that it brings them extremely close mentally and physically.

Along with the desire to teach the man they fancy about pleasure and the proper way a male ought to be, they have a habit of thirsting for knowledge and wanting to know everything about their partner. By closely interacting, they perform a detailed investigation concerning everything including his nature, qualities, preferences, fetishes, and even which erogenous zone is his weak point.

After obtaining full knowledge of the man who will become their husband, they will use their own body as material to provide personal instruction on "how to deal with a monster", explaining the pleasure of sex with a monster and all about the body of his wife to be. In the initiation they gently guide a man while striking precisely at his "weak point", and not only will he not resist, he'll even find their guidance to be relieving and delightful, and his body and heart will swear allegiance to them. By surrendering to their guidance, indulging in their body and learning about pleasure and how to treat them, he will become an obedient and exemplary student who can live up to their expectations by ejaculating a countless number of times.

Not only can they obtain information from those they touch, they also have the power to impart their own knowledge and share it with the ones they touch. By using this ability, the knowledge they possess is passed down from parent to child. The tremendous knowledge they have by nature is the crystallization of ancestral wisdom continuously accumulated generation after generation.

Normally they will use this ability to teach their husband their own weak point and get him to attack it. However, in the case of a husband having multiple monster wives, it is also used to share information about their husband's weak point with the other wives so they can more precisely and effectively offer love and pleasure to their husband.

• Wolf Family • Beastman Type

ヘルハウンド Hellhound

Habitat.....Volcanic regions, mamono realms, graveyards

Disposition....Ferocious, bold, selfish

Diet.....Carnivorous, wild animals, etc.

A hound monster that has dark skin and fur, and burning red eyes. They're fierce hounds that have a durable, powerful body that's always burning uncontrollably with seething desire, and they have a severely ferocious disposition like hellfire. With their excellent sense of smell, they acutely sense the odor of the human men who will end up as their prey, and attack and rape them as soon as they find them without any regard for consent.

Unlike other wolf monsters, they are regarded as being absolutely untamable by humans. As far as they are concerned, a human man is a weak, fragile being that they should force into submission as their own male. For example, even if a man stronger than them were to appear, the only thing on their mind would be how to break the male before them into submission and make him their own. They would never even consider obeying a male.

After capturing a man they're into, they keep him within reach so they can violate him whenever the urge arises. If they feel like having sex, they'll pin a man down right then and there and have sex with him, and if they feel like getting pregnant, they'll violate him so much his semen will be milked dry. The sex is extremely rough and wild, but they don't cause pain and agony for men through it. The only thing induced is pleasure so wild it causes a man to submit to them from the bottom of his heart along with the ejaculation.

In this way, they lash out violently at men with their lust, but they never treat men carelessly. They also recognize that humans are frail beings, and they treat them with care as "their one and only male", something more valuable to them than anything else. If an enemy tries to harm their male, they'll leap to his defense and attack the enemy with full hostility and ferocity, unlike how they treat their male. Even if the enemy isn't killed, they will surely witness the sight of hell.

No matter what, they just won't become a "pet dog", but they do recognize the men they capture as their husbands and shower them with love just as any other monster would. But the more their love deepens, the more their lust blazes, heating up their desire to have sex with their husband and get pregnant. It's expressed as increased ferocity, and they'll end up spending even more time riding on top of their husband.

Despite them having this sort of nature, there are many men who are fixated on taming them, believing "a dog should always be tamable." There's no end to the number of men who approach them to try to train and discipline them only to end up conversely yielding in submission themselves.

However, it's not like they have a lot of pride or anything, so even in the case when they're assaulted by a man, they don't get angry or refuse. On the contrary, they would likely gleefully accept it and enjoy being violated as a female in bestial intercourse. However, it never means they've been "broken". When the man is basking in glory thinking he has successfully forced one of them into submission, the next moment she'll counterattack and violate him in return, as if to say "it wasn't nearly enough."

It is purported that originally these monsters were created as guard dogs by a certain god of the underworld, but it was impossible even for the gods to tame them. If there were a man who could make them submit, that person's ability as a trainer would have to surpass even that of a god.

• Orc Family • Beastman Type

ハイオーカ

High orc

Habitat.....Mountainous areas

Disposition.....Lustful (bold, ferocious, malicious or timid, devoted)

Diet.....Omnivorous: eats anything

Beastmen having the characteristics of a boar, they are a higher rank variety of "orc". Despite their thickheaded appearance, they possess both superhuman strength and quick wits. Their specialty is charging and by doing so, they can easily send a crowd of people flying; even heavily armored knights would be knocked into the air.

They are leaders who command hordes of orcs that gang up before mobilizing. As powerful, courageous champions, their mere presence is inspiring to the orcs, assuaging their fears and causing them to maximally exhibit their Orcish nature to persecute the weak. Orcs under the command of a high orc become bolder and attack human men without hesitation. The high orcs themselves even exceed orcs in ferocity and belligerence; true to their own desires, they take action in pursuit of human men who will serve as their prey and aggressively attempt to violate them. They have the same devious personalities as orcs, and it is said that sometimes they even lead armies to attack human villages or bandit strongholds, etc.

A high orc's body produces a peculiar odor, and when orcs, who have a sharp sense of smell, get a whiff of it, it intoxicates them and excites their lust, transforming the pig beastmen into brave and ferocious warriors. If a high orc gives the order, the frenzied Orcish warriors will rush a man all at the same time, and a man captured by them is a slave for satisfying their passion and lust; in other words, he would immediately be taken back to the orc's den as their husband, and end up having to live according to their carnal desires covered in their soft bodies. Their den is pervaded by the choking feminine stench of the high orc, which endlessly arouses the lusts of the flesh in all the orcs and their partner, causing a relentless feast of flesh, filled with pleasure and cries of ecstasy, to unfold.

While the presence of a high orc inspires absolute confidence in orcs and makes them feel powerful, on the other hand, the defeat of a high orc causes all the orcs to become distressed and panic stricken. It's said that even orcs who had supposedly been raging a short time ago would uniformly lose the will to fight and collapse on the floor.

Furthermore, when defeated by men, contrary to their violent and belligerent personalities, even the high orcs themselves will become self-conscious of being female and surrender their body and heart. They undergo a psychological transformation, becoming servile and subservient so that they take pleasure in being violated by the male, and their body also transforms into soft, lovely flesh that exists only for the male's pleasure; just being touched by the male will make them lose their strength and prepare to receive him, or so it is said. So too will their body odor also transform into a scent that's alluring and invigorating to the male; just smelling it will cause his penis to swell up to the point that it's ready to burst and arouse carnal desires for the high orc herself as well as the orcs. Additionally, the hearts of orcs who smell it will be filled with a sense of defeat regarding the man, causing them to transform into "females who submit to the male".

According to their husbands, their body odor can be quite addictive, and during sex, the men spend a while sniffing their body odor to arouse themselves and achieve a maximal erection. And then, the men enjoy violating the lovely flesh of these females who can never oppose the penis to their heart's content.

• Mouse Family • Beastman Type

火鼠

(ヒネズミ)

Hinezumi

Habitat.....Mist continent, volcanic regions

Disposition....Bold, stubborn, cowardly

Diet.....Omnivorous (eats anything), prefers eating fire.

A mouse monster native to the mist continent. They have a coat that's red like brightly burning flame. They can tolerate intense flames, and withstand any high temperature without ever burning. They're overly confident and pugnacious, having a disposition almost as intense as flame. Even though most of them have a small body, they excel at martial arts, and when they spot a man who also has knowledge of martial arts, they'll assertively challenge him to a battle.

Their flames ignite the hearts of those exposed to them, arousing their fighting spirit. Since those who've been challenged to a fight by them have their fighting spirit seared by these flames, they become unable to avoid fighting her. Unlike other monsters, they don't show much interest in having sex with men, and even act as though it disgusts them. Even in the case of winning a battle with a man, they'll mostly be satisfied with just that and leave.

However, in the case that the man wins, his fighting spirit that had been ignited by their flames will then change into lust that burns with just as much intensity, and it will be directed towards them. If that happens, a man will end up giving in to his burning urges and rape them.

Water is their weak point, and when they have a lot of it poured on them, the flames of their coat temporarily weaken, and the color changes, growing whiter. Along with that, their fighting spirit and violent temperament are also lost, and their timid true nature that had been hidden by the flames becomes exposed. The liquid that contains lots of male mana, that is to say, semen, is even more highly effective. Even if they verbally refuse, their body will accept the mana, and each time mana is poured inside, their flames will weaken for a time, and they will reveal the submissive and adorable side of themselves.

They're covered in their own flames which rouse their own spirit. The reason they don't show any interest in sex in spite of this is that they release all their arousal through fighting. The "monster" within is always smoldering. But if they have sex with a man and their body learns the taste of the man who is their husband, their flames flare up to such a degree that they can't be relieved just through fighting, and then they'll feel passionate desire towards their husband.

After obtaining a husband, their flames increase in intensity, and can no longer be weakened by water, or the mana of another man. The only thing that can extinguish them is their husband's mana. Even if they're normally not submissive, if their husband pours his mana inside, their coat, the inside of their belly, and even the inside of their head will be stained pure white. They'll likely only reveal their entranced smile and meekly sweet voice to their husband.

During sex, part of their flames will transfer into the body of their partner like a spreading fire, and he'll be able to temporarily drape himself in this "hinezumi coat". It is said that the coat of flames grants the wearer high resistance to fire and heat, and heats up and activates the body, allowing the constant utilization of the maximum extent of his power. Additionally, it also enables the feat of covering one's fists in flame, and in the mist continent it's not uncommon to see a couple of fighters, a hinezumi and her husband, covered in flames together.

However, being draped in flame also has the effect of causing constant arousal, and that arousal will also be directed towards the original owner of the coat, the hinezumi. Of course, if lacking an opponent to fight, he'll lash out at his mate, the hinezumi, with that arousal.

Holstaur

• Minotaur Family • Beastman Type

Habitat.....Plains, human settlements

Disposition....Gentle, devoted

Diet.....Omnivorous, prefers grass

A beastman monster that has the characteristics of a cow, and a peculiar black and white fur. They are a subspecies of minotaur, and through the process of evolution, their violent nature has subsided. These are the ones who chose the path in life to live by obeying humans. Different from minotaurs, they have a gentle personality and almost never attack people.

However, just like minotaurs, they're not deep thinkers, and they're spaced-out much of the time. Other than when they eat or have sex, they mostly sleep. A wild holstaur is always looking for a man to become her husband, and once she's found a man she likes, she lives with him in a human settlement, or nearby area.

A holstaur will often press her huge breasts up against her husband as a expression of affection. If he responds to this by rubbing her breasts, it'll be considered a return of affection and she'll be extremely pleased. If she presses her breasts up against him more firmly than normal, it's a sign that she's interested in mating.

On a fundamental level, they respect the will of their husbands, so even if you turn her down, it won't be a problem. However, while they may be docile, they're still monsters that possess an inhuman amount of desire. Continue to ignore them for too long and eventually they won't be able to take it anymore. If this happens, these docile monsters will turn ferocious and assault their husband, forcibly having intercourse with him, and they won't become docile again until all their pent-up sexual desire has been satiated.

Also, just like the minotaur, they will become aroused if they continue to see red. Once aroused they will turn violent, as though they are remembering their true nature as a monster, and they will attack men almost just like the parent species "minotaur". In the same way as a minotaur, even in this enraged state, the monster's instinctive desire for her husband remains strong, and in the case of those that already have a husband, if they see something red and enter a state of arousal, it is said they'll charge off at full speed heading towards their husband no matter how far away he may be.

Even if they haven't given birth, they can still produce milk from their breasts. Not only is this milk highly nutritious and delicious, it also has a stamina boosting effect. Demand is high among both humans and monsters, so it's a fast selling commodity. They mostly just eat, sleep, or have sex, but if living with a holstaur, the milk alone will be sufficient to support a couple's lifestyle.

Inari

• Fox Family • Beastman Type

Habitat.....Zipangu region (forests, mountains, human settlements)

Disposition....Devoted, lustful

Diet.....Omnivorous: they love meat

A beastman type monster with the characteristics of a fox that only inhabits the land of Zipangu. They live in forests and mountains, but many also transform into people and live in human settlements.

They're a subspecies of youko, but compared to youko they're well behaved. They almost never assault humans and are very friendly to people. Normally they are very graceful, and they become devoted to the men they love. Many men have been captivated by them, choosing to become a married couple and live together.

In this way, they look very well behaved on the surface level. But their level of sexual desire is no different from that of the youko. They are extremely lustful. For the most part they don't assault their husbands if they are not in the mood, but they will tempt them to incite desire and use whatever excuse they can to initiate sex. Once one has sex with them, it's as if their ordinary gracefulness was a lie. They enjoy behaving lewdly while having sex with a man. Having ample knowledge of techniques for pleasing men, they're able to conquer their husbands via devoted service with an obscene smile.

Their tails are a symbol of high mamono mana, and by absorbing mana through having sex with a man, they're able to store up mamono mana, until they increase to a maximum of 9. The size of their lust is proportional to the number of tails, so even though they still have a graceful appearance, individuals with many tails have their heads full of thoughts about having sex with men. They're much more forward, and will tempt men much more frequently. The way they go wild during sex also changes so that they incite even more carnal desire in men.

In the same way as with youko, those with many tails are unable to contain their immense mamono mana inside their body, and it will continuously leak out. However, they are masters at controlling mamono mana, unlike the youko which haphazardly releases its mamono mana all around, and only channel their mamono mana into their own husband.

After having been infused with their mamono mana, the husband's lust will swell up. He'll attack them right on the spot and they'll end up having sex roughly. Since the power of their mamono mana is concentrated into their husband instead of being scattered, the youko's is nothing compared to it. Their husband will end up raping them like a beast. However, they accept that their husband is a beast, and experience unbearable happiness and joy as a female.

Individuals having 9 tails are known as "kyubi-no-kitsune" (nine-tailed foxes), and they are said to have immense, almost god-like mamono mana. And so, a kyubi-no-kitsune's husband will be infused with immense mamono mana. Since a kyubi-no-kitsune herself has extremely high lust, they often end up in a state where they may continue to have sex all day long.

• Tiger Family • Beastman Type

人虎 (シンコ)

Jinko

Habitat.....Mountainous regions, forests, wastelands

Disposition.....Serious, calm

Diet.....Carnivorous: wild animals, etc.

A proud race of beastmen with the characteristics of the tiger. They are fighters with dauntless courage who are strong of body and pure of mind. They are self-disciplined and always seek to improve themselves, so they are not seen as wild and sexually uninhibited like other monsters. Normally they don't attack human men.

However, during mating season it's another story. When in heat their monster blood awakens, and their bodies flush. The lust is so powerful that even with their willpower they can't control it, and they aggressively seek men with the intent to indulge in pleasure. There's a much longer period between mating cycles compared to other beastmen, but it is said that once they do go into heat it's extreme to the point that sometimes they must have sex more than 100 times to satisfy themselves; perhaps as a reaction to suppressing their "female" side the whole time until then.

Even if they repress their female urges and aren't even aware of it, once they spend a night with a male during mating season, and have sex repeatedly, their bodies are stained with pleasure and mana. Thoroughly learning the taste of a "male", their minds acknowledge themselves as "female" whether they like it or not.

No matter how strong and pure a mind they possess, they are still monsters. Once they get a taste of a female's pleasure, they're never able to forget it. Their tempered body and pride as a tiger, everything they had built up until then, becomes stained with ecstasy; and they devote their whole existence to just one male. Once their body belongs to one beloved male, having semen poured inside and being impregnated brings them the greatest happiness as a female. That is what they end up thirsting and longing for.

Even when such a strong desire takes root, they maintain self control through sheer willpower and at a glance appear to be just as pure as ever, except during mating season. But they change so that in their hearts they very eagerly anticipate the arrival of the next mating season when they can just be simply female.

As if to grant such a wish, after having carnal knowledge of a male, they enter a state where it is easy to go into heat. Once they awaken as a "female", they can instinctively sense when a "male" is checking out their body, the changes in "male" breathing, and body temperature, etc. If a "male" takes a sexual interest in them, gets aroused, and gets an erection, then their female body can easily go into heat if that's what a "male" wants.

• Apeman Family • Beastman Type

カク猿

(カクエン)

Kakuen

Habitat.....Mist continent (mountainous areas)

Disposition.....Cheerful, selfish, lustful

Diet.....Omnivorous: eats anything

Monkey beastmen native to the Mist continent. They form troops and live deep in the mountains. They can freely leap about between trees with their light body and dexterous hands and feet. They use their long tail for maintaining balance in the treetops, and other than that, they can use it to hang by wrapping it around a branch; they also specialize in a form of martial arts using this durable tail.

Out of all the beastmen, they are regarded as being closer to human, and they have extremely high intelligence. Nevertheless, they have a rough disposition, and an arrogant, selfish personality. Prioritizing their own desires, they often treat humans with a disparaging attitude. On the other hand, they are highly lustful and curious; when breeding season comes around they become very interested in the bodies of human men and mating, and they will kidnap and violate them.

They are cunning due to their high intellect, and when dealing with a human man who strikes their fancy they won't flatter him, instead assuming a teasing attitude. They will sexually assault their target when they feel like mating, but they have an extremely difficult time enduring pleasure; so it is said that once they learn what feels good, they just repeat that again and again. If they mate with a human man even once, their mind becomes obsessed with it.

They'll end up spending all day on top of human men continuously shaking their hips like a monkey. What's more, those individuals who become interested in a specific human man will masturbate while thinking of that man. Regardless of whether they've actually mated with him or not, they'll think about the man whenever they have a free moment and inch their hands towards their lower abdomen and tail; proceeding to make lots of wet noises.

After learning the taste of their husband with their body in this manner, they become a prisoner of the pleasure, and are completely unable to control their insatiable lust and desire; becoming exactly a monkey in heat. Just from being around their husband their lust will swell up as their body seeks pleasure, and they'll become unable to think of anything but mating with their husband. Even just being touched or catching his scent will cause them to become unable to control their lust, and they'll leap at their husband to mate with him. After ending up like this, no matter how smart they are, they're still monkeys after all. So if one suggestively alludes to mating and pleasure, it will make them easier to control; and it will become easy for a husband to take charge, both in life and during sex.

After living with them for a while, a man will, just like them, gradually become unable to endure lust and pleasure. They will end up leading a hedonistic lifestyle, going at it like monkeys. It will be much the same for a human woman living among a troop as well, and she'll progressively become unable to control her increasing lust. She'll start to smile in a lascivious manner, exuding carnal passion. Then her body and heart will change into a "kakuen".

They are not a race that is at all adept at converting human women into monsters, nor do they excel at manipulating mamono mana, and yet, it's easy for monsterization to occur. It is said that they can easily influence humans because their mamono mana is highly compatible with humans, but according to another explanation, a susceptibility to pleasure and a lack of self-control such as what they exhibit is something that is originally inborn in humans as well. So because humans and kakuen are closely related, if a human crosses a certain line they can easily fall as a monkey.

• Weasel Family • Beastman Type

カマイタチ

Kamaitachi

Habitat.....Zipangu (mountainous areas)

Disposition.....Each of the three are different.

Diet.....Carnivorous: wild animals, etc.

A race of beastman monsters that inhabit Zipangu who are said to move at blindingly fast speeds and appear along with a whirlwind. They have the power to generate wind with sickles made from hardened parts of the fur covering their arms. Their biggest distinguishing characteristic is that they always act together as a trio, and they even form a trinity when going after and attacking human men.

Each of the three has different special characteristics. When they spot a man, first the one with the most strength springs at him and knocks him down, sealing his movement. The winds generated by her heavy, dull sickles are heavy winds that cause shock waves that blow away her opponent. Even a hulking behemoth of a man would fall to the ground before those winds and end up being straddled and pinned down by her.

Next, the one with the sharpest sickles uses her winds to slash up the man's body and the clothing that is in the way. Just as her sickles are the sharpest, the winds generated are also the sharpest of the three: for instance, even if a man were wearing armor, it would be torn to shreds, and his body would receive countless lacerations. These wounds do not hurt or even bleed, but the parts that were cut feel hot and start throbbing.

Then, after that, the one with the most dexterous fingers rubs medicine into the man's lacerations in a gentle manner. The gentle winds generated by her small, dull sickles gently caress the man's bare skin, thereby alleviating his fear and tension, providing a sense of ease. Due to those winds, not only the man's bound body, but even his heart loses the will to resist, and he ends up simply accepting the medicine that she rubs into his body.

This medicine, a secret medicine handed down among the kamaitachi, is made from a concentration of the mana of the three of them. When it is rubbed directly into a man's flesh and blood through his lacerations, the man's body is transformed into one appropriate for a male kamaitachi. In other words, it becomes so that he recognizes the kamaitachi as the most attractive females, and in addition to causing an irresistible biological urge to reproduce with them, since the kamaitachi are fundamentally a trinity, the sexual urges towards them and desire to ejaculate will not subside until he fires semen into all three of the kamaitachi's wombs. And then, at last, the three attack the man all at once and copulate, tasting and sucking the man's body as they please, taking turns straddling him.

Since they always act together as a trio, they always appear as a perfectly coordinated trinity, and they can instinctively divide duties amongst themselves in an optimal manner. This goes without saying when fighting an enemy or assaulting a man, but even when it comes to sex and pleasing their husband, they can offer three weasels' worth of love and pleasure. Additionally, the three of them do more than just swarm their husband. For example, while one is having sex, the other two may get dinner done and finish preparing the bath, so they can also be seen in a manner befitting of a Zipangu monster.

Furthermore, each of them will get pregnant at the same time, and all three will give birth to triplets, so it's said that they always form a trinity no matter what the circumstances. Mysteriously, there are also times when three individuals with different parents will meet and take a liking to the same man. Much concerning the reproduction of these monsters is a mystery.

• Wolf Family • Beastman Type

キキモラ

Kikimora

Habitat.....Human settlements

Disposition.....Devoted, diligent, gentle

Diet.....Omnivorous, human men's spirit energy

A type of beastmen that serve human men and receive spirit energy as a reward. They mainly appear in the homes of working men, wait on them hand and foot, and assist them. Having a devoted and gentle disposition, it's their pleasure to treat the man they have their heart set on as their master and serve him. They are highly capable and can perfectly complete any kind of housework including cooking, laundry, and even cleaning.

Being sensitive to the subtleties of human emotion, just from appearances they can tell their master's food preferences and personal tastes even if he doesn't tell them directly, and they can even read his mood and physical condition that day, and they perform optimal and conscientious service in accordance with that. They can even grasp how much lust is pent-up and, if their master wants, they'll use their own body to perform obscene services and satisfy him at any given time. A man who becomes their master can live comfortably with peace of mind. Due to their support, he'll be able to exhibit his own abilities to the furthest extent.

They basically don't personally assault or tempt men. They also don't seek sexual gratification if their master doesn't want it, and they give off a pure and beautiful aura while working for the sake of their master. However, even if a man goes a while without laying a finger on them after becoming their master, we can say for certain that after living together eventually he'll be driven by bestial lust into wanting to defile the beauty with his own hands. It's unclear whether the desire stems from the masters themselves or it's something that they cause, but most will be unable to bear it and will put their hands on these beautiful servants and have sex with them.

Even though they don't normally reveal their monstrous nature, they are full-fledged monsters. Their monstrous body is designed to service and satisfy their master, and once he gets a taste, he'll be hooked.

Their master will start putting his hands all over them even while they're working. But even after their master becomes an animal, they never put up any resistance. If ordered to service him, they'll make their tongue crawl along his penis with an ecstatic expression. If suddenly pushed down, they'll gladly offer their body and receive it. To them, it is unsurpassable bliss to offer their body to their beloved master and have him use it. They seek out men who are worth serving for life. They especially prefer diligent workers, but perhaps because of their innate officious nature, many of them can't let the guys who lead a lazy and unhygienic life go.

Even in that case, their devotion is unwavering. In order to correct a man's lifestyle, they'll briskly take care of his every need. However, in what may be a vestige from the age of the former demon lords when they had a habit of viewing the lazy as prey and devouring them alive, they will show the face of their monstrous nature more strongly than usual. They'll take care of a man's towering erection when waking him up early in the morning. And after delicious, healthy, and nourishing meals. And at night in the bedroom when going to bed early together. An orderly life will be frequently interspersed with lewd service and nightly sex. While living in that manner, they'll raise the man into an imposing incubus worthy of being their master.

Furthermore, they once had wings and legs like a harpy, but it's said that they changed into human arms and legs so that they could provide more thorough and diligent service. Their feathered wrists and scale-covered feet are vestiges of that.

• Wolf Family • Beastman Type

コボルド

Kobold

Habitat.....Plains, mountainous regions, caves, human settlements

Disposition.....Meek, simple, submissive

Diet.....Omnivorous: eats anything

A type of beastman covered in fur with a petite body that widely inhabits various regions. It is supposed that since they live closely with humans, the process of evolution has reduced their ferocity. They're harmless monsters that won't attack even if they spot a human.

It is said that they have docile, friendly personalities and they will recognize human men that strike their fancy as their masters and accompany them; living together. They love being praised by their master, and with their inherently excellent olfactory sense they can find things such as precious plants and ore, or prey animals hiding in the forest.

It's not that they have low intelligence, but their thinking is mostly simple and instinctive. So when they want affection from their master, they'll be upfront with their feelings and just snuggle up against him with their entire body, so it is easy to understand what they are thinking from their actions.

They are also very expressive with their emotions; if they're happy, they'll smile fully and wag their tail, and if they're sad, their eyes will become teary, and their tail will droop weakly. They express emotion with their entire body, not just their facial expression. It is said that they are so lovely in appearance that their master will end up being mesmerized and become infatuated with them.

But even so, they're still monsters after all, so even the slightest little thing can immediately and unexpectedly trigger a lustful frenzy. As one can discern from the way they use their whole body to seek affection, having their body touched by their master is extremely pleasing to them. Of course their breasts, and their lower parts, but also even just having their belly or head patted will cause an expression of total ecstasy and make them terribly aroused.

Also, they love their master's scent, and just getting a whiff of his masculine odor is often enough to set them off, whether they're sniffing his clothes, or relaxing in bed. Furthermore, they frequently move their face close to their master just to try and sniff him. Even so, it is said they still will not attack their master, instead waiting until either they receive his permission or he makes a move on them; which is most laudable.

The strange thing is that regardless of the fact that they can't use any kind of charm spells at all, most of those who become their masters will lose their inhibitions; stroking and teasing their breasts and lower parts becomes as normal to the master as playing with a dog. Additionally, when praising a kobold, as a reward the master will let the girl suck his penis or permit her to mate.

Once they've mated, they change from cute little doggies to beasts with a desire to bear their master's offspring. They engulf the penis with their petite body, rocking their hips back and forth violently in a bestial manner to ensure that the semen is poured inside their womb as deeply as possible.

They are adored by many humans and monsters, and most of their masters say that they are man's best friend. In part because they are considered harmless to humans, even in some of the anti-monster religious states there are those who advocate for sheltering them. In the religious states with more lenient laws, it is even permitted to have them as pets. Even in such countries, fornication with a monster is supposedly disapproved for the most part, but as mentioned above, it appears that most owners will end up having sex with them; so perhaps it is quietly being tolerated.

• Baphomet Family • Dark Beast Type

クランプス

Krampus

Habitat.....Snowy regions (snowy mountains)

Disposition....Ferocious, devoted

Diet.....Carnivorous: wild animals, etc.

Black beastmen with a terrifying appearance that inhabit snowy lands. Despite normally dwelling deep within desolate, snowy mountains, as the "special day" of the winter season approaches, they become very active and start to appear even in other places seeking human men. That's why instead of the men they prey upon encountering them in the snowy mountains, in most cases, it happens in places like far away cities, and they may even suddenly appear at the home of their prey.

Their disposition is as ferocious as their looks would suggest, and their speech and behavior are very violent. They pin down their prey with their powerful bodies and violate them. On the other hand, they are crafty and contemplative, so even when they've locked their sights on the man who will be their prey, it is said that they always carefully prepare and keep waiting for when the "special day" eventually comes to get their hands on their prey for sure instead of just attacking immediately. Thus, generally speaking, a krampus will be wild with lust when she appears before her prey. When sex happens, the prey will be dealt pleasure so intense that it's violent and be mercilessly milked of essence like he's being devoured by a beast.

But in actuality, the source of the bestial lust driving them is their excessively strong desire to "service" the men they fancy. Perhaps you would never imagine it from their ferocity, but they are an extremely devoted race who take joy in obediently supporting their husbands, and when they discover their husband to be, they burn with a strong desire to service him. As they await the arrival of the "special day" to be joined with him, it only swells ever greater. When the moment they had been anxiously awaiting is finally at hand and they appear before their prey, the desire which had been swelling day after day must be insuppressible, and they will give in to their urges and launch an assault to offer him devotion. In other words, the more they think about how much they love their husband and want to service him, the greater their ferocity grows.

As a result, when they perform oral service intent on providing enjoyment and satisfaction for their husband, it is like a beast sinking its teeth into his manhood and going on a feeding frenzy, and when they offer their body and chastity to their husband for the sake of getting impregnated with his child, the sex is like copulating with a beast in estrous as they ravish their mate by straddling him and slamming their hips into him wildly. In this manner, even though it is provided violently, it doesn't change the fact that it is still "service". Contrary to how it looks like being devoured, instead the pleasantly sweet pleasure and ejaculation render their prey's body and heart unable to resist them.

Furthermore, the "special day" is a date set by these girls themselves as the day appropriate for offering all of their body and soul to their husband. In most cases, the day chosen is a day with special meaning to their male prey such as his birthday or a holiday that's important to many people such as the Chief God's festival which takes place during the winter season, and so on. They make many preparations for that day. Not only do they prepare to go and marry their husband, there are also cases when they make arrangements to welcome their husband into their own lair. With the arrival of winter, krampuses can be seen stuffing their prey into sacks and hauling them away on their shoulders. After such an abduction, they always roll out the red carpet for their prey without exception in a warm room where they provide a fancy dinner that they have prepared as well as pleasure of such intensity as to be considered violent.

Additionally, the aggressive nature of their devotion affects more than just sex. For instance, there are many tales left behind of the sort which concern men who were hard to call good people being abducted by krampuses, only to finally make a surprising return years later as fine men of character alongside their kidnappers turned wives, leaving people to wonder what on earth had happened in the meantime. Hence, depending on the region, krampuses have come to be told of as "monstrosities who come to punish bad children during the winter holidays".

LARGE MOUSE

• Mouse Family • Beastman Type

Habitat.....Sewers, caves, building type dungeons, etc.

Disposition.....Impatient, ill-natured

Diet.....Omnivorous: eats anything

A beastman type monster that has a small body build and the characteristics of a rat. Since they prefer dark and moist places, they usually live indoors in dungeons, etc. Their size is no larger than the average human child, and while they aren't strong by themselves they are very nimble. Also, when they take action, they're always in a pack consisting of dozens of individuals, so by attacking all at once they can even bring down prey that's far larger than themselves.

Of course, when confronting a human man as well, the pack will carry out the assault together while scrambling to be the first to mate. In general they are monsters who can never remain still and are often found running around in circles for no reason at all. When it comes to mating, it is much the same, and when they get turned on, their hastiness causes them to hurriedly rush after a man's body.

They occasionally appear in human settlements to steal food and abduct human men, who are necessary breeding partners. They have a peculiar trait; there is only one man per pack. A man carried away by them will become the center of the pack, and will be continuously violated by overwhelming numbers of them one after another. In the event that the number of individuals in a pack increases too much, the young will leave the group and form a new pack. This pack will then head for a human settlement, seeking a man to serve as the center of the new group.

Rats are often used as magical catalysts, and since they possess the characteristics of rats, they have a physical makeup that makes it extremely easy for them to store magic. However, they have no means of utilizing this magic, despite the fact that it can easily build up, and when they store up too much of it, it exerts a powerful influence over them. Their bodies become so hot that they lose control of themselves and go into a lustful frenzy, so they sometimes bite humans and infuse them with the excessive magic.

In the case of a human male victim, or a female that has matured to a certain degree, the magic will diffuse inside their bodies after they are bitten. However, in a little girl's case, the magic will remain within her body.

Directly after being bitten there are no significant symptoms, but after a while the girl will become restless like a large mouse, and eventually she'll come down with a fever and collapse. At the same time, her body will begin to change, and by the time the fever subsides, she will have changed into a large mouse. Even though the little girl's fever will go down after changing into a large mouse, her body will remain hot and flushing, and this heat will drive her to assault a man. By bearing the man's offspring, she will create a new pack.

Large mice born in the manner described above, and lone individuals who have strayed from their pack, will experience a sudden and dramatic increase in sexual desire. Everything they think and do will primarily be for one purpose: assaulting a man and bearing his offspring to increase the size of their pack.

• Rabbit Family • Beastman Type

マーチヘア March Hare

Habitat.....Wonderland

Disposition....Lustful, cheerful, lonely

Diet.....Herbivorous, prefers demon realm produce

A variety of beastman unique to "Wonderland." The progenitor of this race was a "wererabbit" who, so she could live more comfortably, was granted the power of a mighty succubus (inma) by "The Queen of Hearts" who absolutely adores rabbits. They're in heat all throughout the year, and they're sex-crazed. They're so lustful that "sex" isn't just on their minds, it is said that it pervades their flesh, from the tops of their ears, to the tips of their toes.

When they come face to face with a human man, they often misinterpret his words in a lewd direction, perhaps because their head becomes filled with the desire for sex with the man right before their very eyes, and wild fantasies. For example, if a man offered sweets by them responds with "I want some", "I'll have some", or "sure looks delicious", etc., they'll misunderstand it as "I want some (of you)", "I'll have some (in a sexual meaning)", "(your body) sure looks delicious", etc., and from there the conversation will deviate in an obscene direction. In this way, after striking up a conversation with them, no matter how far removed the subject is from sex, they'll get hot and bothered, and the conversation will ultimately arrive at obscenity. And then, mistakenly believing that the man also wants to have sex with them, they joyfully attack to initiate it.

When one begins having a conversation with them, at first it's confusing and impossible to understand. But while having verbal and physical exchanges, and being exposed to their demonic energy and madness, one gradually becomes able to understand their peculiar thoughts and distortions of topics. Ultimately a man will become sex-crazed like them and be able to calmly have insane conversations that can be obscenely distorted from any given topic, and it will all seem normal. Once they obtain a husband in this manner, their head becomes full of thoughts of "sex with their husband" instead of "sex with men". Since the conversation ultimately always goes back to the topic of sex every day, it naturally leads to spending their days having sex.

For that reason, those who become their husbands will end up spending most of their days having lewd exchanges, verbally and physically. From the top of their rabbit ears, to the tips of their toes, the hare's body will be crazy for their husband, and once a man gets a taste of it, it very easily makes him become sex-crazed, or rather, wife-crazed.

Their dietary habits are just like the original species. They're herbivorous and prefer vegetables, etc. but out of that, they prefer demon realm produce, especially stuff with a high aphrodisiac effect. Instead of drinking water, they drink a sort of aphrodisiac. Their dietary habits further accelerate their sex drive, but it's said that they're constantly in heat to begin with, so it probably only makes a slight difference to them.

Also, they often participate in tea parties held by monsters called "haters". One should be wary, because the tea and sweets they offer are typically made particularly from the demon realm produce with the most radical effects.

Minotaur

• Minotaur Family • Beastman Type

Habitat.....Grasslands, dungeons such as caves, labyrinths, etc.

Disposition....Aggressive, ferocious

Diet.....Omnivorous, mainly prefers meat

A beastman type monster with the characteristics of an ox. They are monster warriors that have freakish strength and can effortlessly swing enormous weapons. Their temperament is extremely rough, and since they don't think much and their actions are guided by emotion, they are exceedingly dangerous monsters.

They're extremely ferocious, and when they spot a human man of their liking, they practically charge in and assault him immediately in an effort to force intercourse. Since they have boundless stamina, they take much pleasure in unilaterally raping men, and they like rough sex. Once they get a hold of a man, he'll be forced to go along with it until he becomes exhausted and passes out.

Also, since they get aroused when they see the color red, and become even more ferocious, if you're wearing red clothes, it's almost guaranteed that you'll be targeted by these vicious beasts who have nothing in mind but greedily devouring a phallus with their vagina, so you should be careful.

In this way, they are extremely dangerous monsters, but actually they are often encountered while sleeping. They spend most of their day sleeping. After eating they pretty much just go to sleep right then and there. Something minor won't wake them up. Also, after having sex with a human man, if they liked the man, they'll fall asleep while embracing him. Such a man won't be released. He'll start being treated as their husband.

They tend to be very lazy. Only rarely do they ever take an active interest in anything other than eating, sleeping, and sex. On the contrary, they have a powerful interest in these three things. Food, sleep, and sex are the only things that are always on their mind, and especially after getting a husband, they become almost entirely preoccupied with having sex with him. Their daily life with their husband will largely be spent having sex with him, aside from when they're eating or sleeping.

It is said that when they go to sleep, sleeping while embracing their husband makes them more happy than anything else. After having plenty of sex during the day, and becoming exhausted, they will sleep peacefully with their husband embraced in their arms. Eventually, once they awaken and see the dear face of their beloved in their arms, they'll have a go and ravish him from first thing in the morning.

Their day starts with rough sex with their man first thing after rising, and they will continue to have sex until sunset. They'll hug their man and go back to sleep again with pleasant fatigue. Rinse, wash, and repeat.

• Cat Family • Beastman Type

ネコマタ

Nekomata

Habitat.....Zipangu region (forests, human settlements)

Disposition.....Cheerful, whimsical

Diet.....Omnivorous, mana of human men

A kind of werecat that only inhabits the Zipangu region. They possess high magical power and are distinguished by having a tail split in two. Using their magical power they can change into the animal form of a cat. In the same way as the other races unique to Zipangu, since ancient times they have lived among humans as neighbors. Even in human settlements they can often be seen in both their cat form and their original form.

When they find a man who strikes their fancy they don't attack right away, instead changing into the form of a cat. Hiding their true form, they approach the man and use charm magic which causes the man to keep them as a pet. Once this is done they can live together with the defenseless man, and are able to ascertain whether or not he would treat them with love and kindness.

In the same way as an ordinary cat, the following behavior can be observed: "When the man moves closer, they move away. When the man moves away, they move closer." The reason why they move away when the man moves closer is that, although they really like being touched and hugged, they also get turned on by the man's body heat and odor, and it might even cause them to revert to their original form and assault the man on the spot.

On the other hand, they move closer when the man moves away because it makes them feel uneasy when the man grows distant. It is said that they rub their body against the man, leaving behind their scent and mamono mana in order to keep other monsters from approaching him.

In this way, they try to hide their true form, but while they're living with a man eventually they become unable to suppress their instinct as monsters, and they end up sexually assaulting the man. When they break down and sex happens, it becomes more passionate, or more frenzied and obscene the longer they spent living with him, and the longer they had to endure resisting it.

Since once their true form becomes revealed in this manner it is no longer necessary to hide their true nature or control their lust towards the man, they will aggressively rub their bodies against the man and fawn on him regardless of which form they are in. After plenty of enjoying the man's scent and body heat in this way, they get totally aroused by it. While their body's hot they have sex with the man and indulge in the taste of mana and pleasure.

Nekomata are often misconceived of as being "a cat that lived a long time and obtained mamono mana, becoming a monster." In the eyes of the men who were assaulted by nekomata it looks like their pet cat suddenly changed into a nekomata one day, but it's just simply that their cat was a nekomata from the beginning.

• Centaur Family • Beastman Type

ナイトメア

Nightmare

Habitat.....Unknown

Disposition.....Cowardly, weak, lustful

Diet.....Human men's mana

A type of centaur, having the upper body of a human and the lower body of a horse. They possess high magical power, using spells to go into people's dreams while they're sleeping. They don't inhabit any specific type of place, and it is very rare to encounter one outside of a dream.

Although they belong to the centaur family, they feed on the mana of human men like succubi do. When they find a man they like, they enter his dreams, appearing in the form of a voluptuous, strong-willed woman, and seduce him. They'll move their hips as if they're used to it and alluringly copulate with the man, providing excellent pleasure and milking plenty of semen. In contrast with the man, who will be ecstatic after ejaculation, they'll smile charmingly with their semen-covered face and gulp the semen down loudly. After appearing in a dream like that, from then on they'll continue to visit in the man's dreams. He'll keep having passionate sex with them every night and have his mana milked.

However, so long as one realizes he's being attacked, it would be easy to capture her. Because they approach sleeping men, all one would have to do is pretend to be sleeping. They would approach to try and enter the dream without realizing that the man isn't asleep, and then they could be captured on the spot. When captured they're nothing at all like they were in the dreams. These monsters have nervous, timid, and cowardly personalities, and they'll likely freeze up from the shock of having the man they thought was asleep suddenly grab them, combined with the embarrassment of being touched in the real world by the man they love.

Since they can't attack men in the real world due to having such personalities, they play the role of what they think is an ideal woman and have sex with men in dreams. Being docile, they hardly resist at all after being captured, and they're only there in the first place because of their strong fondness for the man, so it's easy to tame them.

Although they appear completely different than in the dreams, after having tasted their body and mana thoroughly, a man's body will naturally throb in reaction to the girl he has been having sex with every night, and he'll lust for her. After having been immersed in pleasure every night, the man will be enthralled by her, so he'll naturally do the same thing they had been doing every night and attack the frightened girl.

Of course, in reality, sex with them is nothing like how it is in the dreams. Her hip movement will be awfully awkward, and she'll be overwhelmed by the pleasure she receives from the man. She'll just keep frantically shaking her hips to try and swallow his penis deeper inside. Tears will come to her eyes as she's showered in semen, and her expression will be tinged with ecstasy.

From the look of it, rather than her milking semen, it's more like she's having her body violated and sullied inside and out by the man's semen in a sticky mess. And when the semen rains down and splatters all over her body, just like a dog that had been enduring hunger, she'll focus on licking it up, and with every mouthful she licks up, her expression will melt because of how delicious it is.

They're so very different in appearance from how they were in the dreams. However, just like the body that the man had tasted every night, it's the body of a monster, which a man will find irresistible; and just the same as in the dreams, sex will result in exquisite pleasure and enthrall the man.

• Cat Family • Beastman Type

オセロメー

Ocelomeh

Habitat.....Wilderness

Disposition.....Ferocious, bold

Diet.....Carnivorous: wild animals, etc.

A race of beastmen also called "jaguar warriors", who are berserkers with a maddening degree of bestial lust. They revere monsters known as "tezcatlipoca" as gods, and maintain a state of unabating arousal by offering prayers and receiving blessing, thereby continuously increasing their own brutality.

Tezcatlipoca preach that "the true natural order is for humans to be violated and devoured by monsters". To these faithful warriors of the gods, the purpose of their existence is to violate and ravish human men according to bestial lust. Thus, naturally, they attack as soon as they spot human men, and sometimes even raid human villages seeking an abundance of prey, so they are extremely dangerous monsters.

As berserkers, they fight with intense ferocity and fearlessness using the lithe and powerful body of a beast, yet, on the other hand, these dreadful warriors are exceedingly wise when it comes to battle and also happen to have an aspect of composure. What's more, they wield brutal looking swords bestowed upon them by their gods. These swords which do not harm the body since they are made from an obsidian-like mamono realm ore rip the mana of their prey to shreds even by simply grazing him, resulting in a hot, pleasurable throbbing that's so shocking that even a single blow would completely dissipate his will to fight.

After defeating a man like that, they are just as merciless as during battle, and will violate him, copulating with the severe ferocity of a mad beast. The words of their gods state, "Prey must be devoured completely without wasting even a single scrap of meat or drop of blood", and accordingly, it is said they never release men they have ravished, instead devouring the entirety of their lives with the entirety of their own lives, invariably spending their lives together as husband and wife.

The duty of warriors who have obtained a husband is to continuously present offerings to the gods, and conceive new warriors who will be even more brutal with powerful bestial lust. Thus, from then on their lives consist of nothing but ravishing their husbands. The sight of a monster ravishing a human is itself an offering to the gods, and the divine power the warriors receive for presenting offerings boosts their bestial desires and urges, enabling them to lust insatiably for their husband and violate him with severe ferocity like beasts that are always starving.

Furthermore, according to the teachings of the tezcatlipoca, expressions of love like affectionate behavior towards one's husband, lovey dovey sex, and wholehearted service, must never be shown to anyone but one's husband. As faithful adherents, they'll only allow themselves to be seen unilaterally sucking, riding, and taking him deep inside. However, it is regarded not as "forbidden", but as "that which must be done in secrecy", likely because they cannot disavow such ways of loving, nor can they resist the urge to love their husbands in such a manner given the fact that they too are monsters. What it's actually like when they are alone together can probably be inferred from the expression that appears on an ocelomeh's husband's face when asked about it.

Orc

• Orc Family • Beastman Type

Habitat.....Mountainous areas

Disposition.....Lustful (strong-willed, ferocious, mischievous, or timid and devoted)

Diet.....Omnivorous, mainly preferring the flesh of beasts

A type of beastman with the characteristics of a pig. They live in groups and are often found in mountainous regions. They are extremely ferocious monsters who actively assault people, but they move really slowly and aren't very strong. However, they are very sly and usually attack in groups. You can't let your guard down.

They are extremely lustful, and normally all they think about is having sex with men. They wander around in search of men they can target. Once they've spotted a man, they form groups and attack in an effort to capture him. Men who have been abducted like this are taken off to the orc's homes, where they are made into slaves. Orcs are always dying to be with a man, his fate will be to have intercourse again and again: sucked off, squeezed between, and straddled, a man will be continuously enveloped by their voluptuous bodies, which are like the physical embodiment of such lust. As their hips shake wildly, their body will slap against the man's body and enthrall him.

However, when attacked, if one manages to defeat them instead, they will recognize the victor as their master, whom they will then obey almost as if they were slaves (on the other hand, if one were to attack and lose, the orcs would be very oppressive). For the victors who become masters, the orcs change their nature completely. They will become concerned with their master's mood, and constantly fawn on him. Of course, there would be no change in their lustful disposition. They would seduce their master into having sex with them.

After obtaining a master, their heart and body will have already changed to be devoted solely to him, and their soft voluptuous body which enthralls men will then exist solely to be used and violated by their master. No matter how furiously and violently their master ravages them, even if they're treated as a tool that exists solely for his sexual release, as far as they're concerned, just the fact that their master enjoys using them will be enough to fill them with enough ecstatic happiness and pleasure to melt their heart.

As described, they have a dual nature, both weak and strong, strong and weak. However, it's more like it comes from instinct than personality. If they have never known defeat, they will enjoy the pleasure of raping men, but once defeated they become subservient to their masters, gaining the most pleasure from obeying his commands and being raped by him. Thus, their loyalty to their master is very extreme and very real, and it is engraved in their instinct. Not only do they enjoy being abused by their masters, they're even willing to sacrifice their own lives if their master commands it.

• Weasel Family • Beastman Type

雷獸 (ライジュウ)

Habitat.....Zipangu (mountainous regions)
Disposition....Bold, ferocious, lustful
Diet.....Carnivorous: wild animals, etc.

Raiju

A race of ferocious beastmen said to appear along with thunder and clad in lightning. They are hedonists that seek pleasure that pierces the body like lightning, who live for the sake of the moment of orgasm, and they will attack and violate human men without hesitation as soon as they spot them. They are able to convert the pleasure coursing through their own body into the power of lightning, and they can cover their body in it.

Since they generate electricity by reaching down and fondling their genitals to produce pleasure whenever they get a chance, electrical current is always flowing through their body, and they're always in a charged state. This electrical current won't damage the human body, but those shocked will have an amount of pleasure equivalent to the pleasure from when the raiju generated the charge flow into their body. To the raiju it's mere masturbation, but if the pleasure generated by the lascivious monster's body is received by the human body, the person will instantly be visited by multiple orgasms of such intensity they will become unable to even stand up. They will attack their prey or enemies by discharging electricity, and those who carelessly touch them will also get shocked from the electrifying current.

This current causes pleasure to mercilessly course through the raiju's own body too. Because they are charged, pleasure is constantly flowing through their body, however, instead of faltering, they enjoy being repeatedly visited by orgasm after orgasm; it elevates their mood and activates their body. They desire to cover their body in more powerful current, in other words, more powerful pleasure. Since they would presumably be able to increase their pleasure most through sexual intercourse, they want a male who will be best for them. Men violated by their charged vagina or mouth will have to cope with the new pleasure generated by these sexual organs on top of the pleasure from the current. The powerful pleasure, as if struck by lightning, is usually enough to cause men to ejaculate instantly and pass out.

If a man is liked by a raiju and becomes her husband, he will have to spend his days having intensely stimulating sex with a monster devoted to the pursuit of pleasure. By becoming an incubus, a man will become able to enjoy the lightning-like pleasure (that can't be processed by the human mind), as a sort of numbing, stimulating pleasure, without passing out. They can continue to maintain the greatest pleasure they built up by having sex with their husband, by converting it into the form of current and charging it in their body. Due to this, their body can always be pierced by the greatest pleasure induced by their husband. At any given time, they can continuously ruminate the best moment when they were brought to orgasm by their beloved husband while focusing their mind on him.

Their electrical current has the property of continuing to stay charged for a while even in the bodies of those shocked. During this period a person will be continuously attacked by the pleasure, but as time passes, the current and the pleasure will subside until it eventually leaves the body. However, many of the human women shocked will find themselves unable to forget the stimulating pleasure from that occasion. When they feel dissatisfied as the current subsides, they'll start to reach down and touch their own genitals to try to obtain pleasure. The new pleasure charged from the woman's own desire will bind with the raiju's mamono mana and amplify the weakening current.

By the time she experiences joy whenever the current pierces her body and begins to seek pleasure even greater than that of masturbation, a woman will have become a new "raiju" who longs for the best male to get stimulating orgasms.

• Squirrel Family • Beastman Type

ラタトスク

Ratatoskr

Habitat.....Forests, human settlements

Disposition.....Malicious, cowardly

Diet.....Herbivorous: prefers nuts and fruits, etc.

A race of beastmen having a large, soft tail and a tiny body. The race excels at handling "information", and they utilize their petite, agile body to run around all over and gather info with their superior eyesight and hearing which is then shared among members of the same race via a unique network. Thus, they are said to possess tremendous amounts of information. They are the monsters' information brokers, and there are also many news organizations run by them in monster-friendly states and mamono realm states. They themselves are said to seldom attack human men, but they do instigate by providing men's information to other monsters, or bringing men to the locations of monsters.

They aren't monsters with especially mighty physical strength or magical power, but the information they bring influences the thinking of groups and individuals, and they even have enough power to be able to incite people to a certain degree. As information brokers, they basically deal in accurate information, however, having a malicious character, they enjoy impelling humans and drawing them into the world of pleasure, leading men and women to have indecent relations. For that purpose, they are also said to instill people with information that includes exaggeration and embellishment.

By manipulating information, they inspire goodwill towards monsters even in anti-monster adherents of the Order, and they can even make a married couple out of a man and woman with a stormy relationship just by conveying messages between them; many monsters ask them to mediate between themselves and men. Furthermore, there are many stories of nations that were worried about whether or not to accept monsters that ended up going the monster-friendly route due to "information about monsters" reported by them, and there's even an anecdote that says a human city changed into a mamono realm just from them disseminating information about "monsterization" to human women.

When obtaining a man of their own, they also make excellent use of information and create situations which their target absolutely cannot escape from. Inducing a man himself to come after them is their forte. However, they are a timid race by nature, and when push comes to shove and it's time to have sex with a man, they just might become bewildered, and they also often lose their nerve and flee when there's the perfect opportunity to violate a man. When they're strongly desired after overly fanning the flames of a man's passion and driving him wild, they can't understand what happened. Although they might have thought that they had the man in the palm of their hand until then, they may end up like a small female animal, unable to resist the man turned beast and being ravished as he pleases.

Regardless of how they possess the power of information which can manipulate people, once pleasure has been drilled into their body by a penis, they are unable to ever defy it, and eventually, their body and heart will be dominated. The seemingly cheeky attitude that they had until then will disappear somewhere, and they'll end up changing into a pet that fawns on the man who became their husband.

Their distinctive huge tail is used to balance their body, and other than that, it's also used as a cushion for resting and a bed for having sex. As one might expect given that it's used in ways like that, the soft, fluffy tail feels pleasant to touch and embrace, and it's said their husband becomes enthralled with their tail along with their body. If their husband tightly embraces their tail, not only will their husband feel good, but so too will they, in a different sense. Since it feels more pleasant to embrace the girl herself when she's all ready for it, there are also many husbands who enjoy the tail to their heart's content before making love with them.

• Bear Family • Beastman Type

レンシュンマオ Ren xiongmao

Habitat.....Mist continent (bamboo forests)

Disposition.....Cheerful, lustful, gentle (ferocious)

Diet.....Omnivorous (prefers bamboo leaves)

A kind of beastman peculiar to the mist continent distinguished by having black and white fur. They have a large body, but a gentle disposition and sociable personality, and they take kindly to people, so naturally they have a mysterious charm that many people are fond of. This especially applies to men. Just looking at their adorable, but at the same time sexy, appearance and mannerisms is tantalizing enough to cause agony.

They have the rare feeding habit of mainly consuming bamboo leaves, and sometimes they even walk around holding bamboo and munching the leaves all day long. Perhaps for that reason, they excel at handling pole-shaped things, and there are even individuals who can perform martial arts using a bo staff.

They're extremely curious, and enjoy any kind of fun game or interesting thing, but they especially like playing with men. As for playing "with" men, of course they also love playing "with" the men themselves. Although they normally do exhibit gentle and amiable behavior, once they've found a man they're fond of and "the most fun thing of all" is within reach, their eyes will light up ferociously in the manner of a beastman stalking its prey as they approach him. And then, unable to endure their skillful "pole" technique that involves fondling it and taking it inside their mouth, the man being forced to "play" with them will end up entertaining them by ejaculating semen.

While they're absorbed in playing with a man's body, they often become highly aroused. Once their play becomes serious and they recognize that they want to make the man their husband and become pregnant with his offspring, these lustful greedy beasts won't release a man until their womb becomes full of semen.

Also, it seems that they can't help but be delighted when seeing their husband enjoy their own body. It's said they don't get bored even if they play with their husband's body all day long. And here's another terrifying fact. According to them, they have separate appetites for "fun games with their husband" and "bestial sex for the sake of becoming pregnant with their husband's offspring."

There's more to why they're charming to people than just their outward appearance and mannerisms. Once a man learns the taste of their soft, lewd body which is meant to be loved by a man, he won't even be able to think of letting them out of his arms.

Since they have a charm that attracts people, the mamono realm states and monster friendly states of the mist continent often dispatch them as diplomats when establishing friendly ties with states that view monsters with suspicion. In most cases, they're able to greatly exhibit their own charm and friendliness in the place they've been dispatched. Then, if the men of the country have sex with them, they will be completely won over, and the people's attitude will change towards accepting monsters.

Of course, that's not their main intention at all. It seems what's in their head is finding a husband and playing with him in a fun and pleasurable manner.

• Satyros Family • Beastman Type

サテュロス

Satyros

Habitat.....Forest, grasslands

Disposition.....Cheerful, lustful

Diet.....Omnivorous: prefers wine and foods that go with it

A kind of beastmen that worship the god of alcohol, "Bacchus", and have the characteristics of goats. They are playgirls with uninhibited and hedonistic personalities who love music and alcohol. They spend their days playing the flute while drinking wine according to the teachings of Bacchus which state "a person's rightful and true form is for certain a state of alcoholic intoxication with everything laid bare." They are sociable and friendly towards humans, and if they happen to spot a human they'll invite that person to drink with them repeatedly. But, as a matter of fact, they are also extremely lustful and amorous monsters. They basically view humans in a sexual manner, and their aim is to get men they like drunk and have sex with them.

Having received the blessing of the god of alcohol, the sound of their flute has the power to induce a spellbindingly pleasant intoxication, as if drunk with a fine wine, in those who listen to its melody. After being compelled to have a drink, any person, no matter how heavy a drinker he may be, will fall into a state of pleasant drunkenness if they then play their flute. Being seductresses skilled in the art of conversation, they will smoothly whisper sweet words, and with a kiss with the fragrance and taste of wine, a man will be charmed. His heart will be intoxicated by them, and he will be seduced into having sex. Like a virgin who has fallen in love, a man will be intoxicated by them as they whisper of love with the sound of their flute, and he will then be embraced by them while in a dream-like trance.

Sex with them is like being gently guided, yet it is accompanied by pleasure sweet enough that it feels as if it would melt one's body away. After spending such an unforgettable night, a man won't sober up from alcoholic intoxication, nor will he sober up from being intoxicated by them. Most men will then end up becoming the satyros' beloved spouse, and spend their days living in hedonism, indulging in wine and the satyros' body.

Additionally, they sometimes also get involved with human women. As in the case of men, they get women pleasantly drunk with alcohol, the sound of their flute, and their sweet words, and seduce them into having sex. Without exception women who fall into their hands are instilled with a taste for sex and alcohol. No matter how proper the lady, the uninhibited desire for sex and pleasure hidden within will be made to blossom.

Women who come to know the numbing pleasure of sex and alcohol will usually then become followers of Bacchus, and some among them will also receive the blessing of Bacchus and transform into "satyros". It is said they will end up indulging in alcohol and their partner, living uninhibitedly.

Satyros don't just drink, they also devote themselves to the development of superior wines. The "Satyros Wine" that they make is one of the most high quality wines; like the sound of their flute, it doesn't ever cause a hangover, and it always brings about a pleasant intoxication. Also, it is said that if a man and woman with feelings for one another drink it together, their affection and lust for one another cannot remain hidden and will become exposed. Then they'll definitely cross the line and become joined, so this wine is also highly popular with monsters.

• Cat Family • Beastman Type

スフィンクス

Sphinx

Habitat.....The desert region

Disposition.....Selfish, moody

Diet.....Omnivorous: prefers meat

A type of werecat that inhabits the desert region. On top of having superior physical abilities like other cat types, it also possesses great intelligence and magical power. They are charged with the task of protecting ruins where "Pharaohs" sleep. In contrast with anubis, who guard the interior of the ruins, they guard the exterior and put curses on those who approach the ruins.

When they spot a human man approaching the ruins, they cast a powerful charm curse at him. The curse is put into place depending on the result of their "questioning." If a man answers incorrectly, or finds himself unable to answer, he gets afflicted with the peculiar curse.

A man charmed by the sphinx due to the curse will long to be ravished by her and offer his own body. He will end up falling for the sphinx's temptation and having sex with her. On the contrary, if a man were to answer correctly, the curse would be reflected back at the sphinx herself. But in this case too, the sphinx herself will be charmed by the man and go into a rut, which would likely result in her attacking the man and forcing intercourse in the same way as other monsters.

And then, the sphinx straddles the man and shakes her hips wildly like a beast and milks his mana, as if to punish him for approaching the ruins. Even in the middle of this sex, they'll cast the curse again. However, they time their casting for when the man is no longer all there due to the overwhelming intensity of the pleasure. With all the pleasure going to his head, he won't even be able to understand the question itself, much less answer it, and then when he's afflicted with the curse, he'll be even more enthralled by the sphinx.

Furthermore, besides using it to apply the curse as written above, they also use "questioning" for other things in their daily lives. They often make decisions or judgments depending on the outcome. There's no compelling force as with the above-written curse, but when negotiating or having a conversation with them, it would probably be to one's advantage if he were to answer correctly.

Additionally, unlike anubis, they don't have much loyalty towards the pharaohs, and their objective of "protecting the ruins" has been replaced with "looking for men." In the case that the travelers approaching the ruins are women, they pay them no heed even if they spot them, instead leaving the matter to the anubis.

After having ravished a man, they take a liking to him, and regardless of whether they are on duty or not, they'll take him back with them to their room inside the ruins, and seclude themselves there, enjoying sex again. If they're trying to make a husband out of the man, they'll prioritize having sex with him from then on, with almost no concern for protecting the ruins. Before they know it, they'll be back in the ruins, having sex with the man.

In the case of a man answering her questions correctly and the sphinx being charmed by him, not only would she then go along with the man and disappear somewhere, it is said she may even obey the man and loot the ruins with him.

• Centaur Family • Beastman Type

ユニコーン

Unicorn

Habitat.....Forests

Disposition.....Gentle, devoted, lustful

Diet.....Herbivorous: wild grasses and vegetables, etc.

A type of centaur that lives deep in forests, etc., distinguished by its beautiful white coat and a single horn coming out of its forehead. Even though it's a monster, it is regarded as "the symbol of purity." Its graceful personality and gentle behavior are that of a chaste maiden.

In the same way as other monsters, they make the man they like their husband and produce children by him; but unlike other monsters, they never attack and force intercourse. The men they become fond of and choose as their husbands are absolutely limited to pure "virgins" who have never had intercourse with other women or monsters. They themselves stay as pure "virgins" and never have sex with any men until they give themselves to their husband. They never give themselves to any man but their husband period. Sex with their man is a sacred act, and the fulfillment of the oath between husband and wife.

Because they possess this sort of nature, they tend to be misunderstood, but just like other centaurs they are extremely lustful. Unicorns without husbands spend their time dreaming of days of sweet pleasure with their husband to be. When they swear their oath to their husband, in order to make everything they had ever dreamed of a reality, they'll use their lewd body that they had been saving just for their husband to thoroughly service him. Afterward, they'll frequently seduce their husband and spend sweet days of pleasure continuously having sex just as they had dreamed.

There is a powerful mamono mana contained in a unicorn's horn, and because of it, they can use powerful healing spells. This healing power grows more potent the purer their "unicorn mana" is. Conversely, if another magical power gets mixed in, it loses power. It is said that this is the reason why they avoid men who have had intercourse with other monsters, in order to prevent the power of another monster from mixing in with their unicorn mana.

A unicorn's own mamono mana protects against mamono mana from outside, so it normally causes no problems. However, if her husband cheats on her, and mamono mana from other monsters accumulates in his body; or if she has sex with a man who has had sex with monsters many times instead of a virgin, then she'll be helpless to prevent it, and mamono mana will be poured inside of her.

When that happens, a unicorn's mana will become radically distorted, and she will transform into a monster called a "bicorn", which in contrast to the unicorn, is referred to as "the symbol of impurity". They regard indecency as virtue, and desire to live an obscene life even more immersed in pleasure together with their husband. Because of this they'll even call the person their husband was cheating with, and then, in order to obtain even deeper, more intense pleasure, they'll have threesomes together.

• Wendigo Family • Beastman Type

ウェンディゴ

Wendigo

Habitat.....Snowy region (snowy mountains)

Disposition....Calm, timid, devoted

Diet.....Carnivorous: wildlife, etc.

A race of beastmen with a strange mode of life that live in villages hidden by blizzards. The appearance of married and unmarried individuals differs greatly. Unmarried individuals appear like a young girl clad in an overcoat that completely covers and conceals her entire body, and one cannot tell what is inside.

They follow around travelers roaming in snowy mountains and trail them from behind during blizzards. They excel in the art of self-concealment. They allow travelers to just sense their presence, but then, when the person hurriedly turns around to have a look, they won't be able to see them at all. After a while, they will call out to the traveler in a faint voice. This behavior leaves travelers with an eerie impression, but they themselves are actually an extremely warm and gentle race. When they come across people in distress, they start following from behind out of concern.

However, because of their shy and reserved personalities, they don't like to reveal themselves in front of people very much, so they try to guide people to the exit of the mountain with just their voice and a hint of their presence. If one senses their presence and listens to their words, one will always be able to find their way out of the mountains. On the other hand, there are many who get so creeped out that they can't even tell that they're being guided and end up collapsing. In such cases, they are carried into safe places such as caves where they can take shelter from the blizzard and the wendigos will warmly look after them.

In such circumstances, travelers will be able to see what they look like for the first time. Even though the girl will be entirely covered in the overcoat, the traveler can still discern the curves of her body, and will hear her lovely, caring voice. If the traveler is male, naturally, he'll anticipate and desire to reveal what's deep inside the overcoat, but if he does peek inside, he will no longer be able to safely return to the human world.

Some men lose their minds the moment they behold her face and body. They will howl like a beast while mounting the wendigo, shove their steaming hot swollen penis inside, and begin to violate her; or so it is said. Then it seems these men carry the limp, senseless bodies of their lovers back to the wendigo villages deep in the mountains and disappear.

Additionally, a wendigo can only hide her appearance in the mountains during blizzards. Once a traveler has safely left the mountains, if they turn around, they will be able to confirm what the wendigo looks like. At that point, after having a look at the face of their benefactor, no small number of men will decide to return to the snowy mountains again.

It is said that after a while an unusual phenomenon will happen even to those that managed to safely leave the snowy mountains. They will experience anxiety and a feeling of depression like something is lacking, while at the same time their lust swells remarkably. Eventually, they'll begin to hear the voice of the girl calling out to them, a strange amount of heat will gather in their nether regions, and they'll become able to be active even in the middle of a blizzard without any issues. Then the man will follow her voice into the mountains to claim the girl, whose white skin he briefly glimpsed through an opening in her overcoat, as his own.

Married individuals appear clad in an overcoat that's way bigger than their body as in the illustration. It's unnaturally dark to the point that you can't see inside, yet instead of hiding, the girls make their figure stand out as if showing off. In stark contrast to unmarried individuals, if sighted during a blizzard, they are often mistakenly seen as terrifying abominable snowmen, but they don't directly harm people.

If one focuses their gaze to the utmost limit and peers deep within the darkness, one will vaguely be able to make out a figure. However, if one is able to recognize the true form of the one who lurks in the darkness and what he is doing with the young girl, the spectacle will be burned into one's mind, and they will be unable to maintain their sanity; or so it is said.

Werebat

• Bat Family • Beastman Type

Habitat.....Caves

Disposition....ill-tempered, timid

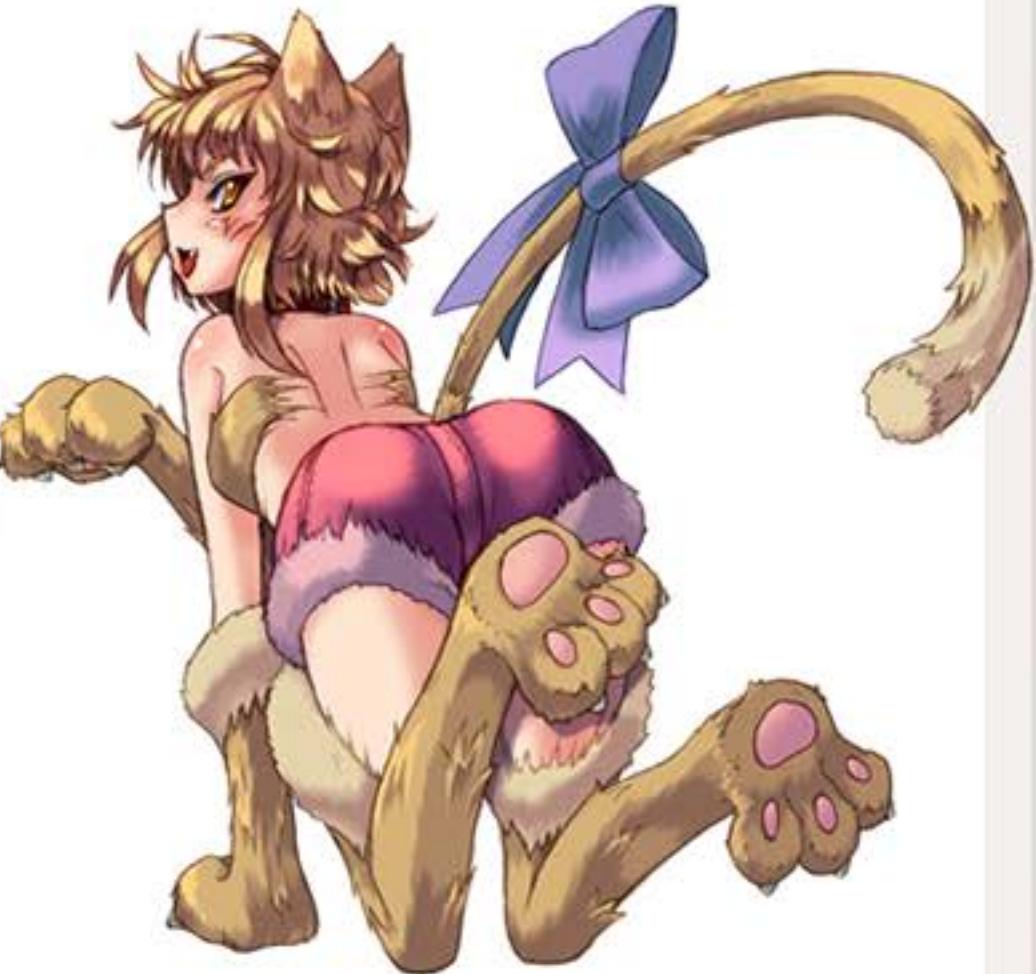

Diet.....Omnivorous: fruits, insects, small animals

Beastmen with batlike features that live in caves and other dark places. They hang upside down from the ceiling in places with limited visibility and patiently wait for travelers to pass by. When one spots a human man who strikes her fancy, a werebat will dive from out of the darkness, knock him down, and forcibly mount him. Sadistic by nature, a werebat will respond to resistance or pleading by escalating the violence of the rape, while grinning lasciviously and maliciously.

When multiple individuals are occupying the same space, their loud moaning and gasping will highly arouse the others, causing all of them to swarm the man. As if in a mad scramble for a single treat, they swoop down from the ceiling in a rush to taste the man's body, licking, rubbing, and teasing. Once a man ejaculates inside one of them, in the next moment a new one will mount him and begin rocking her hips. Since the frenzied orgy takes place in total darkness, the man will not be able to confirm how many of them there are, nor will he be able to tell which werebat is violating him in which way using what. It likely feels like the pleasure is continuing forever.

In this way, werebats are highly ferocious, but they're vulnerable to light. If brought into a brightly lit area they turn cowardly and are effectively helpless. However, even if brought to a brightly lit area, they do not flee from human men. Instead, a werebat would be afraid of everything other than the man. Seeking a man's aid, a werebat will cling to his body and try to hide in his shadow. At this time a werebat will appear to be a nervous wreck. Unlike when they violate men in the darkness, they don't give off a lewd or sadistic impression; on the contrary, a man may be tempted to do something sadistic to them instead. As if to urge it on, a werebat will nestle close and push every part of her trembling female body against the man.

Their instinct naturally seeks sex with men even in these circumstances. If a werebat has sex with a man at such a time, then not only will she no longer be afraid, she'll even be able to feel as relaxed as she would be in the darkness due to the pleasure and warmth provided by the man.

• Cat Family • Beastman Type

WERECAT

Habitat.....Forests, around human villages

Disposition....Selfish, capricious

Diet.....Omnivorous: prefers meat

A beastman type monster with the characteristics of a cat. They have a flexible and strong body, and are talented when it comes to springing on an unsuspecting victim. Aside from living in forests, some individuals also live around human villages, awaiting the opportunity to attack human men.

They have extremely capricious personalities. Often times, when you think they're taking a friendly attitude, they'll suddenly assume a sulky attitude. However, they are a creature whose body speaks louder than their mouth. If the tail is straight up, and the eyes downcast and avoiding contact with yours during a conversation, it means the werecat wishes to be loved, even though her mouth might say otherwise.

Even when they're in a sulky sort of mood, they'll soon brighten up if one has sex with them. Despite being capricious, having sex with the man they like is the one thing they still love to do no matter what the time.

They're usually not very dangerous monsters, but when they go into heat, which happens periodically, they become extremely ferocious, and when they spot a human man, they'll attack and violate him. They often then become attached to the person they had sex with, and even after their heat is over, they'll frequently seek that man. In the case that they've become attached, the longer they interact with a man, and the longer they have sex, the longer their heat will last. Even after it's over, the period before their next heat will steadily grow shorter. For that reason, if one spoils them too much, and has sex with them whenever tempted, they'll end up in a state of constantly being in heat, and things will get out of hand.

Should they catch a whiff of the fruit of a plant called "matatabi", they'll fall into a state of intoxication, their sense of reason will be diminished, and for a while, they'll enter a state that's even more ferocious than when they're in heat. Even though they're usually capricious, during this period, their head will become full of only thoughts of fawning on a man and having sex, and, in a state of maximum arousal, they'll rub their hot body against a man, seeking intercourse.

• Rabbit Family • Beastman Type

WERERABBIT

Habitat.....Meadows

Disposition.....Cheerful, impatient, lonely

Diet.....Herbivorous: mostly wild grasses and vegetables

Half human half beast monsters having the characteristics of rabbits, the majority of which inhabit meadows. They are docile compared to other werebeasts, and are friendly toward humans. They tend to be cheerful and extremely curious. Perhaps for that reason, they are restless, and spend much of their time running and jumping to and fro.

Although I have noted that they are relatively docile and friendly to humans, that doesn't at all mean they aren't dangerous. Unlike most werebeasts, they have no fixed fertile time; rather their mating season is year-long. A wererabbit will greet any man she encounters; if the traveller returns the greeting in a friendly manner, she may take a liking to him, at which point the impatient wererabbit will push him to the ground and take him on the spot. Contrary to their personality and appearance, sex with them is extremely furious. Even when on top of a man they shake their hips like a rabbit hopping around, and indulge in the pleasure. If one were to attempt to escape from a wererabbit in heat, it would be difficult since they swiftly hop around the plains with their powerful legs.

Although the veracity of this is uncertain, it is said that they hate being alone so much that they can even die from loneliness. They desire to always be close to the man they've taken a liking to, and they'll move their body intimately close and fawn on him, seeking sex, which allows them to be as close as possible to him. For them, the happiest time is definitely when they're joined with a man, becoming one.

This is purely a rumor, but if you follow a wererabbit without being noticed when she is hopping around aimlessly, it is said that sometimes you will arrive at a place called "Wonderland" along with her. That place is said to be a bizarre dimension where the monsters are constantly in heat like wererabbits and want to have sex with men like crazy. However, as of the present, no one has ever returned from that place, so it's uncertain whether it really exists. Also, were someone to follow a wererabbit, in most cases, he would be noticed since their big ears have excellent hearing, and she would head straight towards him and attack.

• Sheep Family • Beastman Type

ワーシープ

Weresh sheep

Habitat.....Plains, human settlements

Disposition.....Gentle (violent, lustful)

Diet.....Herbivorous: prefers wild grasses

A type of beastman covered in a fluffy coat, having the characteristics of a sheep. Just as it seems from the fluffy appearance, they're always drowsy and light-headed. They mostly spend their time spaced-out in the plains where beautiful grasses grow, basking in the sun or napping.

When they find a human man, they make a gentle smile as though happy from the bottom of their hearts, and slowly head over to the man and gently embrace him, affectionately rubbing their fluffy body all over the man. If it were some other monster, this is when the man would get violently knocked down and violated, and the monster would deliciously receive his mana, but the way they happily embrace the man doesn't give off that feeling at all. However, this is actually their method of attacking men to get sex. The wool that her body is covered in contains sleep magic. After being embraced and having the coat rubbed all over him, the man will be overcome with the same kind of light-headed drowsiness as them; and when his thinking starts to get hazy, they will slowly remove his clothing.

Upon seeing the man's exposed penis, they will grin happily, raise their own lower body above it, and slowly lower their hips, guiding it inside them. And then, while embracing the man and joined with him, they'll keep slowly shaking their hips. While the man is so sleepy he can't resist, he'll be filled with a comfortable pleasure, and just as he releases mana inside them, he'll fall sleep while enveloped in their fluffiness. They'll also fall asleep in the same way while joined with the man upon experiencing the pleasant sensation of the man's mana filling their body.

Eventually, when the man awakens, due to a physiological phenomenon and the warm, pleasant sensation of being enveloped by them, his penis, which is still inside them, will once again become stiffly erect.

The feeling of it drilling their insides will cause them to wake up too, and after smiling at the man with their sleepy-looking face, they'll begin shaking their hips. While still drowsy, having barely woken up, the man will release mana inside them once more due to the gentle pleasure he is being given.

Their fur, which is imbued with sleep magic, is treasured as a material for bedding and pajamas. The deep sleep induced by the fluffy, comfortable bedding is very pleasant, and even with a short period of sleep, one can completely restore himself from fatigue and wake up feeling refreshed. For that reason, this fur fetches high prices. Also, if cut it grows back after a while, so many people raise them.

However, the reason they're normally so docile and sleepy is the fur. Without this fur, they're released from the sleep magic, and they will fully exhibit their original lustful and greedy nature. Their soft smile will change into a smile more accentuated by desire.

To express all the bestial lust that had been suppressed by drowsiness until then, they'll push a man down and have sex with him. Unable to satisfy their greedy lust with just having sex once or twice, they'll crash their hips into a man's violently like a wild beast in heat to taste an even greater quantity of stronger pleasure and mana. During this time their expression will be different than usual; the ecstasy from tasting pleasure and mana will cause them to make a lewd, completely slackened smile.

Werewolf

• Wolf Family • Beastman Type

Habitat.....Forests, mountainous regions, etc.

Disposition.....Ferocious, loyal

Diet.....Carnivorous, wild animals, etc.

A type of beastmen having the characteristics of wolves that live in packs. Their intelligence is high, but they are ferocious, and they use their strong legs and exceptional stamina to prowl forests, mountainous regions, etc. in search of prey.

When they locate a man who suits their tastes, they attack and rape, allowing themselves to be consumed by overwhelming bestial lust. They have the characteristics of wolves, and they are truly ferocious like beasts during mating. When maddening lust drives them to ravish men, they rock their hips against them single-mindedly. Of course, they possess far more stamina than humans. They won't be satisfied with having sex just once or twice. One would end up having to release his sperm inside of them a countless number of times.

Additionally, since wild werewolves live in packs, if they take a liking to a man, he'll be integrated into the pack, and then he'll end up having to service multiple partners. He'd end up getting raped over and over by many werewolves every night.

Many beastmen become even more ferocious when they come into estrus. Sometimes their desire for a human man is so intense that they'll even come to human villages. When they're in estrus, their body is always throbbing, yearning for human male seed. They'll give in to the throbbing and keep mating day and night. The throbbing doesn't go away until estrus ends, or they become pregnant.

In this way, they're really ferocious, but they sometimes recognize men as their superiors if they're defeated, or if they fall totally in love. And then they end up becoming extremely loyal to the male partner they recognize as their superior, in other words, their master, and they become just like a dog fawning on a man even during sex.

Such werewolves beg for seed so that they can bear the man's children. Also, one who has dominated many werewolves ends up as the boss of the pack. All the werewolves in a pack seek sex, and want to have their boss's children, so every night, he would have to be with them when they snuggle up to him seeking sex.

Also, they sometimes attack and bite human women. Women bitten by them are infused with mamono mana through the opening of the wound, and they end up turning into a werewolf just like them. Women who changed from human to werewolf tend to be much more docile than those who were werewolves from the beginning. Since they recognize their original family and lover as pack members, and master, it's possible for them to keep living like that.

However, if there are other women in their family, they will try to bite them and change them into werewolves, and just like those who were originally a werewolf, they have an intense sexual desire for the man who became their master, and they go into heat and seek his seed, so it can be problematic. Because they were originally human, they're even less able to control their bestial lust, and the man who became their master will end up having to mate with them when they have several times as much lust as they did when they were human.

• Centaur Family • Beastman Type

ホワイトホーン White horn

Habitat.....Snowy region (snowy mountains)

Disposition....Calm, passionate

Diet.....Omnivorous: mainly wild grasses and vegetables, etc.

A race of centaurs that inhabit the cold region, distinguished by having large horns with tips that are stained white like snow. They have a greater amount of body hair compared to other centaur family monsters, and excel at walking in snow despite having a large half-human half-horse body.

To protect themselves from the cold, they increase their body temperature by making their body flush. For that reason, their body and expression are always faintly flushing, giving off a slightly feverish allure. Perhaps because they have a quiet disposition and are relatively rational compared to other monsters, even though they're always making their body flush, to them, it's like a normal state, and they wouldn't attack human men just because of that. They are kind and friendly towards humans, and when they spot a person about to pass through a snow-covered road or mountain, they'll let him ride on their back and carry him because the trip is dangerous. In monster friendly states where relations between humans and monsters are progressing, they may even be stationed at locations where danger is predicted, and they'll safely transport people through snow-covered roads.

Contrary to the low temperature, most races of monsters in snow country dress in a highly revealing manner, but white horns are a rare exception, and mostly clad themselves in thick, cold-proof clothes. Despite this, it seems they would be just fine even in an almost half-naked state, but because their body will naturally flush more intensely in response to the cold, they wear thick clothes out of concern to prevent this so that they won't assault men. Nevertheless, in situations such as when suddenly hit by a blizzard, it is necessary to produce more heat than normal to protect not only their own life, but the life of the person they're carrying on their back, so they may make their body flush so hotly that they become sexually excited.

Additionally, when riding on their back, they will recommend to cling to their body as closely as possible, but when, with hot breath, they make that remark to a man, he may get the wrong idea, teasing and thoroughly rubbing their body more than necessary, which might even make their body flush hot and turn them on regardless of how cold it is. Even when aroused, they wouldn't attack a man in the middle of a snow-covered road, however, as soon as they get off the road, they'll take him into their station, which also serves as an inn, and he'll end up having to deal with their hotly flushing body.

When sexually aroused, everything heats up, including their body, breath, gaze, and even the language they use towards men, and when delirious with this fever, they are extremely passionate. Sex with them begins with an embrace so gentle and warm, that it is as if it alone could restore a man whose body was frozen on a snow-covered road, and a kiss so deep that it seems enough to melt each other's lips. A man will experience the sensation of his body being warmed from the inside as their tongues intertwine and her hot saliva mixes with his. The heat of their vagina blows that of their mouth out of the water, and while penetration will make a man feel like he's going to melt from the pleasure and heat; the feeling of being enveloped and warmed up by a white horn's insides, produces even greater pleasure than the physical stimulation of sex.

In this way, after spending a euphoric, hot night that is seemingly enough to make them forget all about the cold, most men won't be able to forget about that night, and will then choose to become a white horn's husband and live with her.

イエテイ

Yeti

Habitat.....Snowy region, snowy mountains

Disposition.....Cheerful, gentle, honest

Diet.....Omnivorous, eats anything

A type of beastman that live in snowy mountainous areas, they are clad in layers of fluffy white fur. They do not feel the cold even in extremely cold lands and have a high natural body temperature. They're able to continue moving about in even the fiercest of blizzards.

A friendly, cheerful and kindhearted race, if they see a traveler in distress during a snowstorm they'll approach his frozen body and hug him, using their high body temperatures to warm him back up. Even in sub-zero temperatures, those held in the gentle arms of these girls won't feel the cold as they are enveloped in the warmth of their bare skin. During particularly fierce snowstorms many of these monsters have also invited humans back to their homes and shelters, this kind act saving the lives of many travelers.

No matter what the reason, these girls have a habit of hugging and will get their cuddles one way or another, they being the sort who use their body to express their emotions, from joy to arousal, and also to convey friendliness or welcome their partners. When embracing a man they like, their hugs are even more tender, hugging the man right from the front, close to themselves, though not only to provide him with warmth. For them, these deep embraces where they glue their own soft, warm body against the body of the man are an expression of love and courtship behavior.

Generally they're not monsters that aggressively attack men, but they will target one depending on his reaction to being embraced and cuddled by their fluffy arms. If, while embracing a man, their hug is returned, these girls will take it as an indication that the man is interested in them as a female and, pleased by that, they will become more active with their courting behavior and hug the man even tighter against themselves to get him to like their body even more.

Moreover, if the man is aroused by the heat and charm of their body while being hugged, and this causes an erection, these girls will take it as a sign that it is time to mate. As for those whose own body has been sought by a man, while tenderly holding the male, their thoughts will begin to turn to having his child before they gleefully begin to mate with him.

While these girls are gentle and quite docile, you must remember that they are still monsters. Once they get in the mood, there is no stopping them. After a man has "sought" one of them, even if the man tries to resist, he will be pinned down by her amazing physical strength, and she will seek to give him a taste of the heat and charm of her body, that could never be known through just hugging, with hot coitus.

While there are many who will be saved by them, in the case of men, those who "seek to mate" with them while being hugged and having their body warmed up commonly end up becoming the husbands of these girls.

Youko

• Fox Family • Beastman Type

Habitat.....Forests, mountains, human settlements

Disposition.....Aggressive, lustful, egoistic

Diet.....Omnivorous: prefers meat

A beastman type monster with the characteristics of a fox. Besides living in forests and mountainous areas, many of them slip into human settlements with a man who strikes their fancy after charming and entralling him.

Monsters are basically lustful, but the youko stands out as being particularly lustful even among them. When they spot a man they like, they aggressively attack, having wild and obscene sex with him. They accumulate mamono mana on this occasion by obtaining mana from the man. Their tails are a symbol of high mamono mana, and the higher their mamono mana is, and the more they have sex with men, the more they increase in number until they reach 9.

Also, the immensity of their lust is proportional to how many tails they have. With only a single tail, they're not much different from other monsters, but as the tails increase in number, their minds become occupied with thoughts of pleasure and sex with men. By the time they reach 9 tails, they end up thinking mostly about having sex with men, whether awake or sleeping. Their main concern is how to have sex with men and how to enjoy pleasure. They spend much of their time having sex with men except when sleeping.

Men whom they've taken a liking to that have started to live with them and periodically have sex with them will end up possessing high abilities and high lust due to the influence of their mamono mana. Due to these heightened abilities, it appears that those chosen to be their husbands are commonly found in high positions in human society, such as statesmen.

Individuals with 9 tails are called "kyubi-no-kitsune" (nine-tailed foxes), and it is said that their vast mamono mana is even comparable to that of a god. The mamono mana can't be completely contained within their body, and it's constantly being released around them. When exposed to this magical energy, human rationality diminishes, and lust increases. Monsters become ferocious, and along with that, monsters such as succubi gather. Ultimately, a nation of monsters will form centered around the kyubi-no-kitsune, where they'll have an orgy of pleasure day and night.

They're also called "keikoku-no-bijo" (women so beautiful they can steal a ruler's heart and put the nation in danger), and it's certainly true that they will cause human order to crumble, and a country will transform, with the order of the monsters, consumed by pleasure focused around them and their husbands, replacing it.

In the uncivilized "mist continent", it is said that kyubi-no-kitsune rule, and a devilish paradise that we can say is truly debaucherous is spreading, where humans and monsters are consumed with thoughts of having sex according to their desires, and they can enjoy pleasure and copulation all day every day whether awake or sleeping.